Parleys Fail, Restricted Rail Strike Begins Today

Rumor of Impending Seizure by Truman Goes Unconfirmed; Steel Closings Begin

By The Associated Press

"The strike is on. That's for sure."

That was the word from two big rail unions early today as the 6 a. m. deadline neared for a walkout at three big terminals in the mid-West.

A union spokesman said that in the absence of any White House action to seize the railroads it was certain the five-day limited strikes in terminals at Louisville, Cleveland and Minneapolis-St. Paul would start today.

Likewise, he said, five-day walkouts on two short-line railroads out of Chicago and Pittsburgh would start at 6 a. m. Tuesday.

If President Truman order the Government to take over the roads, the union spokesman told a reporter, orders will go out promptly for union members to go back to their jobs immediately.

The President, however, was away for the weekend at his Catoctin Mountains, Md., retreat and in his absence there was no confirmation of reports that Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman had recommended Government seizure of the railroads.

Representatives of the unions and of the railroads were standing by here at Steelman's suggestion. But both sides said they had had no word from Steelman yesterday or any indication of what the White House had in mind.

Steelman summoned the negotiators here for weekend conferences in a last-ditch effort to reach some agreement to avert the walk-out. The talks broke down Saturday night and no meetings were held yesterday.

Meanwhile, the strike threat was squeezing production in war vital plants. Steel mills served by the big terminals were shutting down or preparing to do so.

Republic Steel Corp. at Cleveland halted iron and steel production there last night and told 1500 of its 7000 employes not to report for work today. Further layoffs are expected in the strike runs the scheduled five days.

The two rail unions involved are the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Order of Railway Conductors. They have been engaged in a dispute with the carriers for 17 months over wages and working hours. They want a pay raise for the men who operate the trains and a reduction from a 48-hour week to a 40-hour week, with no loss in pay for their yardmen.

Candidate Rushes Ill Opponent To Hospital

Leslie Sanders, 53, a Democratic primary candidate for sheriff of Montgomery County, suffered a stroke yesterday morning and was rushed to Mount Alto Hospital by a rescue squad led by his opponent in the primary race.

Members of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad, headed by the other candidate, Donald Dunnington, said Sanders apparently collapsed at the telephone.

Dunnington and squad members responded in an ambulance, found Sanders unconsciuos on the floor, administered first aid on the spot, and took him to the hospital.

Freed Wife-Slayer Hendricks Back in Jail as Parole Violator

HOMER HENDRICKS
. . . threatened violence

Homer R. Hendricks, former Washington tax attorney who was paroled a month ago from a 10-year prison sentence in the slaying of his wife, was jailed as a parole violator Friday night, representatives of the family disclosed yesterday.

They said a practical nurse at the Hendricks home called Maryland parole officers after Hendricks threatened to take his own life and "threatened violence before members of the household."

The representatives also said that Hendricks, after he was taken to the Montgomery County Jail at Rockville, tried to take his life there.

They said they had learned that Hendricks used his teeth to wound

Adventists Hear Dry's Plea

'Hangover Lodge' and Tests Urged for Drinking Drivers

"Every bar should have a hangover lodge where motorists would be kept until sober," W. A. Scharffenberg, executive secretary of the American Temperance Society, told a temperance rally here yesterday.

Scharffenberg spoke on the final day of the Potomac Conference Seventh-Day Adventists' camp meeting, Sligo Church, Flower and Carroll aves., Takoma Park.

He urged legislation requiring bartenders to receive car keys before serving drinks to motorists. "After drinking," he said, "the customer should be taken to the 'hangover lodge' until simple scientific tests prove his fitness for driving.

Would Prevent Accidents

"This is an attempt to prevent highway accidents. It is not the drunks we worry about— they are too far gone. It is the so-called social or moderate drinker with just enough alcohol in his system to benumb his senses, who is the potential highway murderer.

"The solution to the alcohol problem is education for total abstinence," he declared.

He disputed the contention that alcoholism is a disease.

"If it were a disease," he said, "why don't we treat alcoholism as we do every other major disease? Discover the germ that causes the disease and then endeavor to destroy the germ. Why bottle up the germs and sell them to the public?

"The trend in modern medicine is towards preventive, not curative, medicine."

Camp Meeting Ends

"The liquor interests are winning more converts for the dry cause than are the temperance forces. This is due to (1) excessive advertising, (2) drinking among women, (3) drinking among teenagers, (4) drunken driving, and (5) promotion of the idea that alcohol is a food."

The 10-day camp meeting ended last night when Elder Francis D. Nichol, editor of the Review and Herald, general church paper, addressed the closing session.

More than 1000 visitors and delegates are returning to homes in Virginia, Maryland, and the District.

Other speakers yesterday were William H. Shephard, president of Washington Missionary College, and C. H. Smith, publishing secretary of the Potomac Conference.

Adelaide, Australia, Aug. 20 (U.P.). The sinking 7800-ton British steamer Mill Hill, damaged in a storm during the night, was abandoned by its crew today after the first officer was washed overboard and presumed drowned.

Fifth Day

Forest Fire Spreads in California

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 19 (AP).—Red-tongued destruction slashed deeper into the mountains east of here today as one of the worst fires of San Diego County's history raged on through its fifth day.

The situation was described as "no better—and worse than last night" by the Cleveland National Forest dispatcher's office.

One major break-through in fire lines threatened the heavily timbered Laguna recreation area. Another cut further into the scenic woodland of Cuyamaca State Park, already burned over a thir of its area.

National and State forest officials reestimated the area burned as approximately 56,000 acres, instead of the 60,000 figure of last night.

The visible ruin was a great black scar in the mountainland, approximately 16 miles long and eight miles wide. In it lay the ruins of 20 residences and cabin-type homes, as well as recreation and camping facilities.

Greatest damage was the destruction of foliage which protects the mountain from erosion and retains the storm runoff that feeds lakes and reservoirs. This loss was described as a "catastrophe" for the water-short county by Hamilton K. Byle, Cleveland National Forest supervisor.

Two San Quentin Prison Riots Quickly Quelled

San Quentin, Calif., Aug. 20 (AP). Two riots rocked San Quentin Prison's mess hall Friday and Saturday nights. They were quelled when guards fired shots over the rioters' heads.

Warden Clinton Duffy, who hastened back from a weekend vacation, blamed "a group of rowdy young kids blowing off steam."

Duffy said 11 prisoners were treated for scratches suffered in Friday night's scramble, in which some 200 inmates threw trays, cups and silverware. Twelve ringleaders were put in solitary confinement.

Dr. Leo L. Stanley, head of the prison's medical department, was in charge during Duffy's absence.

British Send Land Forces To Korea

Tommies to Go 'Immediately' From Hongkong; Number a Secret

Singapore, Aug. 20 (AP).—Gen. Sir John Harding tonight announced that a British infantry force will be sent from Hongkong to Korea "immediately." This is the first dispatch of British ground forces to the Korean warfront.

General Harding, commander of British Far East land forces, said the action was taken in response to a request from Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of the United Nations forces in Korea, to send reinforcements "without delay."

Naval Air Units in Action

The size of the infantry force was not disclosed. Britain had announced earlier this month she would send a force of about 5000 troops to the battle area as soon as a "self-contained unit" of infantry, tanks, artillery and engineers could be put into shape. British naval and air power already are aiding U. N. forces in Korea.

(In London, informed sources said the infantry being moved from Hongkong to Korea could be in action in "less than two weeks.")

General Harding's brief announcement said:

"In response to a request by the commander-in-chief of the United Nations forces in Korea for dispatch of reinforcements without delay, the United Kingdom government have decieed to send an infantry force from Hongkong to Korea immediately.

"Replacements for units comprising this force will shortly arrive in Hongkong."

He said the units being sent to Korea from Hongkong will be replaced by the First Battalion of the Wiltshire Regiment, now en route from Britain, and by "certain Gurkha units now undergoing engineer training in Malaya. One armored car squadron is also being sent from Malaya to Hongkong."

Terrorist Drive to Continue

The replacements will reach Hongkong during the first half of next month.

General Harding said transfer of troops from Malaya to Hongkong will not affect British efforts to subdue Communist terrorists in Malaya, since the Gurka unit was "in training and not fighting."

(The British aircraft carrier Warrior left Portsmouth, England, today with reinforcements for British ships fighting off Korea. It followed the carrier Theseus, which left Friday. Both are 13,350-ton vessels carrying between 40 and 45 planes each.)

(In Hongkong approximately 1500 British troops are "packing up now" for Korea, it was learned officially.

(The informants identified the troops as the First Battalion of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders and the First Battalion of the Sutherland Highlanders, two crack Scottish regiments.)

So. Koreans Push Enemy For 12 Miles At Pohang

A Major Victory Claimed in East; More Native Units In New Landings

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 21 (AP).—The South Korean army claimed "a major victory" Sunday against 30,000 Communists on the east coast—the third Red offensive reported broken in as many days. Despite these victories, United Nations forces got set today for a new Red push.

U. S. Marines and infantrymen mopped up in the Changyong sector after wiping out a 12,000-man Red bulge in the Naktong River defenses.

Americans and South Koreans recaptured Kumhwa and pushed on a mile and a half north of that highway town, 12 miles above Taegu, important U. N. base.

But the Reds were probing all along the 120-mile defense line. Roughly 50,000 North Koreans remained massed in the Waegwan-Kumhwa sector in the northwest, threatening a new thrust toward Taegu, abandoned last week as temporary South Korean capital.

However, the next threat appeared to be developing in the Chinjumasan area, the southern anchor of the defense line. "One of the greatest kills of the war" was made in this sector Sunday by American forces, Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton reported. He said 1350 enemy dead were counted in a fight for two minor hills.

MacArthur's Headquarters said elements of the North Korean Seventh Division was reinforcing the badly mauled Sixth in this area. Increased enemy activity pointed to an impending drive here.

A MacArthur spokesman said the next Korean offensive has been delayed apparently because the Reds are "badly off balance." He suggested they "probably are much worse hurt than we imagine."

Red artillery, however, shelled Taegu again during the night. Previous fire has been mainly directed at the railroad station but last night's was scattered over the west side of town.

At least seven rounds were fired.

A spokesman for the South Korean Army said forces of the Republic of Korea crushed the Red Fifth and Seventh Divisions in a two-day fight naer Pohang and drove the invaders back 12 miles north of that east coast port city.

"We have won a major victory," the spokesman declared.

He told a news conference that 30,000 Communist troops began a

Army, Navy Chiefs Land in Tokyo For War Talks

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Admiral Forest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, arrived here by plane at 8:02 a. m. today (6:02 p. m. Sunday, EDT) for Korean strategy talks with Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

They were greeted at the airport by MacArthur, Admiral Charles T. Joy, commander of Far Eastern Naval Forces; Admiral Arthur W. Radford and Lieut. Gen. George Stratemeyer.

Sherman and possibly Collins will go to Korea to see U. S. troops in action after talking with the United Nations commander.

World Aid Plan Unveiled By Laborites

Devised to Succeed ECA; Urges Action To Curb Communism

London, Aug. 20 (AP).—Britain's Labor Party called today for a new, long term "World Plan for Mutual Aid" to succeed the Marshall Plan in 1952.

The idea is to beat communism with butter instead of guns.

Britain and other free Western nations would contribute to it as well as the United States.

The party's powerful executive committee, which includes Prime Minister Clement Attlee and several other Cabinet members, set forth the idea in a pamphlet laying out, in general terms, some of its ideas for a new election platform.

The pamphlet, entitled "Labor and the New Society," called also for armed defenses "strong enough to resist aggression."

Arms Not Enough

But, it added, "reliance on armed strength is not enough. The democracies must be positive, constructive and progressive, not merely defensive. They should launch a program of mutual aid for world economic development."

It saw a new, long range economic plan as an essential defense against the onrush of Russian-led communism.

"Rising standards of living are the strongest defense against infiltration by communism and fascism," the booklet said. Poverty and despair are their best allies."

Morgan Phillips, secretary of the party, told a news conference that Britain itself would take the initiative in proposing and planning such a program. He said it would carry further the idea expressed in President Truman's inaugural address of helping develop "backward areas" of the world.

The party statement said "work should start now on the preparation" of the new program, although the Marshall Plan still has some two years to run. Phillips acknowledged that the United

Fire Power Of Reds Held On Wane

By Homer Bigart

With American Troops in Korea, Aug. 20 (NYHT).—Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, United States Eighth Army commander, today declared that the fire power of the Korean Communists now is definitely decreasing and that Taegu, advance American supply base, "certainly is saved."

He made this observation after visiting the most difficult sector of the northern front, about 15 miles north of Taegu where the Communists have massed elements of three divisions for an effort to drive a wedge between South Korean forces and American troops.

There was at one time considerable nervousness when it appeared the enemy had managed to interpose an estimated force of a regiment with tanks in a gap between the American Twenty-seventh Regimental Combat Team and the South Korean Sixth Division. Speedy arrival of South Korean reinforcements helped to contain this threat.

Foe's Losses Severe

While some front-line officers were less confident than General Walker, there was general agreement the Reds' artillery is on the wane. Severe losses of armor have made the enemy exceedingly cautious in using tanks. He no longer runs them out far ahead of his infantry the way he did early in the campaign, hoping to break the American lines and overrun artillery positions.

"The answer to the tanks has been found in adroit use of massed artillery and in brave and sharp-eyed forward observers who risk their

163 More Names Added to U. S. Toll in Korea

The Defense Department yesterday added 163 more names to the total American casualties in the Korean area.

In its seventieth casualty list, the department identified 15 killed in action, 83 wounded, 60 missing in action and 5 injured. One was reported as having returned to duty with the Army after previously being reported wounded.

The Marine Corps listed 11 killed in action and 14 wounded.

The Defense Department has announced it will not release a cumulative total of American casualties in Korea until it is sure the information no longer will be of value to the Communists.

Planes Help GIs Kill Reds By Hundreds

Air Sweeps Smash Power Stations; Destroy Transports

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 21 (AP).—Allied naval planes swept over North Korea Sunday, shooting up communications, the Navy announced today. Other planes teamed with United Nations infantry and artillery, slaughtered hundreds of Red troops in southwestern Korea.

Far East Naval Headquarters said the sweeps by Navy pilots over North Korea destroyed 36 locomotives and 47 box cars. The announcement said most of the bag was made in the vicinity of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

The Navy also reported 22 trucks, 6 warehouses and 9 power stations were shot up.

On the battlefront in the southwest, American planes strafed and bombed an estimated 5000 North Korean soldiers grouping for an attack in a valley near Haman.

Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton reported from that front that, although the Reds still held two pieces of high ground, at least 1350 enemy bodies were counted and hundreds of other Communists undoubtedly died from the combined air, artillery and infantry attacks.

Also on the southern front, carrier-based Marine fighters blasted an ammunition dump north of Chinju, starting a series of explosions that lasted more than 10 minutes. Chinju is about 28 air miles west of Masan.

On the east coast, 70 air miles north of Pusan, Australian Mustangs, despite bad weather, strafed and bombed North Korean tagret Sunday. They hit Communist troops on a ridge at Hunghae and rocketed a supply dump at nearby Anjang.

Fifth Air Force F-80 and F-51 fighters flew more than 260 sorties, giving air support to Allied ground troops.

Light B-26 bombers and Marine fighters attacked troop convoys and rail and highway targets behind enemy lines.

A dive-bombing attack by Navy planes scored eight direct hits on a vital railroad bridge at Seoul Friday, leaving it "zigzagging."

(The United Press said the planes appeared to have knocked out the famous "rubber" bridge at Seoul. The span had been dubbed "rubber" because of repeated failures to knock it out.)

Task Force 77 pilots, in carrier-based Skyraiders, Corsairs and Panther jets, flew 142 sorties hitting military targets from Haeju, on the west coast a few miles north of the thirty-eighth parallel, to Sunchon on the extreme southern coast.

Embassy Investigates

Famed 'Burma Surgeon' Held On Suspicion of Aiding Rebels

Rangoon, Aug. 20 (AP).—Dr. Robert S. Seagrave, known to millions as the "Burma Surgeon," has been arrested on suspicion of aiding Karen rebels, the Burmese government disclosed today.

The United States Embassy viewed the arrest of the 53-year-old American surgeon who has spent a lifetime giving medical care to the Burmese people, as "a serious matter." It withheld detailed comment.

Seagrave, a lieutenant colonel in the Medical Corps of the United States Army when he accompanied the late Gen. Joseph Stilwell on his famous 1942 jungle retreat through Burma to India, was taken into custody on Friday at his mission hospital at Namkham, near the Chinese-Burmese border. He was flown to Rangoon yesterday under heavy guard and is being held at an undisclosed jail here.

No formal charges have yet been laid against Seagrave. Officials said he would appear shortly before a Burmese court.

The Burmese government has given permission for American officials to visit Seagrave in Rangoon, and legal counsel is being arranged for him.

An American Embassy official said Seagrave is "in good health and receiving good treatment." The Embassy supplied him with certain material comforts he requested.

Senate Votes Today

Democrats Predict Defeat Of Moves to 'Cripple' Controls

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Beginning at 1 p. m. today, and continuing probably far into the night, the Senate will vote on the Administration's economic controls bill and some 52 pending amendments to it.

Democratic leaders predicted that they will be able to defeat all "crippling" and "special privilege" amendments but they conceded there will be a hard fight on some of them.

Major tests are expected to come on the proposal to include the Smith-Mundt Communist-control measure, as a rider to the economic bill, and on amendments to eliminate completely price and wage control stand-by authority from the bill.

Senate Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.) has called a conference of all Democratic Senators for 10 a. m. today to effect a solid party front against the Smith-Mundt rider. He has promised the Senate a chance to vote later this session on legislation to curb Communist and subversive activity.

Standing alone, the Smith-Mundt bill commands substantial support from both parties. But many Democrats, including Senator Maybank (D., S. C.), who will steer the economic control legislation for the majority, feel it has no place

Holds Officers Accountable

MacArthur Warns Reds On 'Revolting Atrocities'

Tokyo, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Gen Douglas MacArthur today accused the North Koreans of "revolting atrocities" against prisoners of war and warned the Communist commander in chief he and his officers will be held "criminally accountable."

A MacArthur headquarters release said the general sent the blunt warning to North Korean Commander and Premier Kim Il Sung by radio and leaflet.

It told him to make his officers and troops abide by the rules of civilized warfare or "I shall hold you and your commanders criminally accountable under the rules and precedents of war."

MacArthur said that "uncontrovertible evidence has disclosed a series of revolting atrocities committed by North Korean forces upon United Nations prisoners of war.

"There is documented proof of many instances in which such prisoners, disarmed and bound, have been brutally murdered by your officers and men holding custodial responsibility for their safety.

"Those are crimes not only against the victims themselves but against all humanity as well," MacArthur added.

MacArthur said U. N. forces had faithfully abided by the rules of civilized warfare in according protection to prisoners falling into their hands.

MacArthur acted three days after 32 American war prisoners, their hands tied, were shot or beaten to death in a mass slaughter by North Koreans.

Two Die as Light Plane Crashes After Take-Off

Tiffin, Ohio, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Two men were killed today when their light plane crashed in a field near Republic, nine miles east of here.

The victims were Nevin Ballreich, 27, and Jerry Thompson, listed as about 20, both of Tiffin.

Authorities said the plane, piloted by Ballreich, made an emergency landing in the field and crashed after taking off a second time.

U. N. Shouldn't Oust Russia, Austin Says

U. N. Asked to Act

Probe of Red War Captives Is Demanded

Lake Success, Aug. 20 (AP).—Britain, the United States and Australia asked today that the United Nations Assembly investigate at its fall meeting why Russia has not repatriated all World War II prisoners taken by the Soviets.

A telegram addressed to U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie requesting that this item be added to the Assembly agenda was received today. It was signed by Keith Shann of Australia, Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain and Warren R. Austin of the United States.

The General Assembly opens its fall session September 19.

On April 22, Tass, official Soviet news agency, said all Japanese prisoners of war had been repatriated except 1487 convicted or under investigation for alleged war crimes; 971 being turned over to Communist China on war crimes charges, and nine undergoing medical treatment.

On May 5, Moscow announced that all the millions of Germans captured by the Red Army had been sent home except 13,546 still held as war criminals, for investigation, or for medical treatment.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters estimated in June that 370,000 Japanese prisoners were still unaccounted for in Russian territory.

On July 14, the three Western powers charged in substance that Russia had lied in saying she had freed all her German war prisoners.

Lake Success, Aug. 20 (AP).—Warren R. Austin, United States chief delegate to the United Nations, said tonight that Russia should not be thrown bodily out of the U. N. because, he said, "it is better for diplomats to get nervous indigestion (listening to them) than for young men to get shot."

In a (NBC) television program, he picked a letter from Gertrude Taylor, Washington, D. C., out of the thousands he said he has received, and answered her query. The letter said "Russia has violated everything the U. N. stands for, so why prolong the argument? Won't you, with the other countries, expel Jakob Malik (Soviet delegate) from the U. N.?"

"Objective Is Peace"

This was Austin's answer: "Our objective is peace. We do not find peace by throwing out the person with whom we must make the peace.

"We must be firm in our principles. We must be strong. But we must also be patient.

"In the United Nations, we must keep trying to convince Mr. Malik and his government of their errors and of our peaceful intentions. Through the United Nations, we can reach the peoples of the Soviet Union and of other countries.

"It is not the people, it is the 'ruling circles' that we encounter here. That creates a force of public opinion, backed by moral authority that opposes aggression—and even the Soviet dictatorship cannot ignore such a force.

"It is a strain for us to listen to the deceit that the Russian spokesman has poured out. But truth will prevail. Meanwhile, it is better for diplomats to get nervous indigestion than for young men to get shot."

Meanwhile a United States spokesman said today Austin would let go a "haymaker" this week in the bitter Security Council tussle with the Russian, Malik.

Last Thursday Austin deliberately delivered a toned-down statement in presenting a proposal that the United Nations begin now to frame a program for setting up Korea as a unified independent country when the shooting ends.

Failed to Soothe Malik

His soft words failed to turn away an irate answer by Council President Malik, who repeated old attacks charging the United States with aggression in Korea and accusing nations helping the U. N. effort of being "Marshallized" and dictated to.

"Austin will let go a haymaker this week," a United States spokesman said. "We're not going to let Malik get away with the charges he has been making in all his speeches during the last 10 days."

Austin appeared tonight on a program with James E. Webb, Undersecretary of State; Dean Rusk, Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs; and Edward W. Barrett, Assistant Secretary of State for public affairs. They were on the broadcast from Washington.

Austin also pointed out that substantial help was on the way to Korea from among the 30,000 ground force troops pledged by seven nations, remarking "we are trying to do quickly somethng that never has been done before in all history. It is astonishing that they have mobilized so much so fast."

The former Republican Senator from Vermont said that the mail and telephone response of the public to three weeks of television and radio broadcasts of the Security Council meetings "exceeds anything I have experienced in my 25 years of public life."

Korean Envoy Calls for End To Separation

Lenox, Mass., Aug. 20 (AP).—Korea's Ambassador to the United States today said he hopes and expects the United Nations to put an end to the separate North Korean state when the fighting ends.

Dr. John M. Chang said, "When the tide of battle in Korea shall have turned, and when the invading armies are smashed and destroyed, it is our full hope and expectation that . . . the United Nations will proceed to restore 'peace and security' in the whole nation.

"It is expected that the mountains which mark our traditional boundary with Manchuria will be restored as the northern limit of our nation."

Dr. Chang said he then expects the U. N. will hold an election in North Korea to fill the 100 National Assembly seats held open for the Northerners in the recent South Korea elections.

He added:

"In all our 4000 years of history, my people have never fought an aggressive war. We have no designs against the territory, the rights, or the security of any nation.

"All we want is restoration of our homeland, under a government elected by the free and fair choice of our own people.

Until that right is secured, the title to freedom of every nation must remain uncertain. If aggression is encouraged by one triumph, it will seek still more.

"Surely this is one lesson that the twentieth century has had much cause to learn."

World Atom Curbs Urged by M'Mahon To Help Win Peace

New York, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) declared tonight that there can be no freedom from fear or hope for peace so long as atom bombs, tanks and planes roll off Russian assembly lines.

McMahon, chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, called for world-wide atomic control, an end to the armaments race and a great moral crusade to win the peace.

"As long as the Soviets continue manufacturing atomic weapons, as long as tanks roll off Red assembly lines, as long as the Soviets continue building planes capable of reaching our cities, there can be no relief from the fear that weighs ever more heavily on the free world," he said.

Every armaments race in history has ended in war, he warned in a speech before the thirty-sixth annual convention of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization.

Sen. Millikin Predicts Defeat Of Profits Tax at This Time

By The Associated Press

Senator Millikin (R., Colo.) predicted yesterday that the Senate will approve its finance committee's version of a 5 billion dollar tax increase bill and reject for the present an excess profits levy.

Millikin, top Republican member of the committee, said he expects Administration leaders to spell out a commitment for action next January on the proposed excess profits levy on corporations which would raise between 4 billion and 6 billion dollars a year in new revenue.

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), has proposed such a levy and has said he will ask for a showdown vote on the question after the Senate takes up the new tax bill, probably Wednesday.

President Truman has asked for quick passage of a 5 billion dollar tax increase, explaining that he had not included the excess profits subject because it was controversial and he did not want the emergency measure delayed. It is intended to fight inflation and help pay war costs.

Predicting there will be an excess profits adopted later, Mr. Truman said Congress will be in better position to pass it after election.

Meanwhile, four Senators—two Democrats and two Republicans—agreed that the United States should pay for bulging defense outlays, so war as possible, without red ink financing.

Senator O'Mahoney (R., Vt.) Hill (D., Ala.) and H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) voiced their views in a broadcast.

Hill said he will join O'Mahoney in fighting for immediate imposition of an excess profits levy.

Smith, while not indorsing O'Mahoney's proposal for immediate action on this levy, said he is fearful that increased defense spending may bring on inflation and said "I want to see taxes increased to put us as far as possible on a pay-as-you-go basis."

Flanders likewise did not state his views on voting an excess profits tax now, but said, "the wise thing to do is to be over-prepared rather than under-prepared, because we do not know what Mr. Stalin and his Politburo will do next."

Some Labor Shortages Likely With Impact of Military Needs

By the United Press

Manpower shortages "unquestionably" will develop in key industries as the full impact of President Truman's multi-billion dollar Korean war program hits the economy, Labor Department officials said yesterday.

They expect nothing like the labor shortages that arose during World War II. But nevertheless, the department, which a short time ago was worrying about unemployment, now has a team of 20 experts working on a program to supply new manpower if it is needed.

A United Press survey of eight big industrial centers showed the job picture definitely opening up. Already there is a shortage of many skilled workers with defense industries hiring in anticipation of new war orders.

The results of the survey jibed with statements by the Labor Department officials who said that military calls for reservists and National Guardsmen had not greatly affected the labor market so far, but they said the impact will begin to be felt next month when guardsmen and reservists start reporting in large numbers.

Even so, the Labor Department is hopeful it will not have to use its emergency manpower program. Among other things, the program probably will call for manpower ceilings, allocation of workers, and full use of women, younger and older employes, and the handicapped.

The July national employment figure stood at 61,214,000. That is slightly less than June, but still close to the record high of 61,600,000 jobs. Unemployment was down to 3,213,000 compared with 3,348,000 in June.

Here is how one key Labor Department official summed up the manpower outlook:

"Serious shortages unquestionably will develop in many areas. But it is too soon to say when and where they will come. So far the shortages have been almost entirely confined to highly skilled technicians."

Margaret to Announce Troth, London Hears

London, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—The Sunday Pictorial said today that Princess Margaret may announce her engagement on her twentieth birthday Monday to the handsome, red-haired Earl of Dalkeith, heir to the Dukedom of Buccleuch and one of Britain's biggest fortunes.

The newspaper quoted Margaret's friends as saying the princess already has commissioned a photographer to take her engagement picture and that the announcement would have been made before this, but for the birth of Princess Elizabeth's baby.

Kashmir Mediator Held Set to Report Failure

New Delhi, India, Aug. 20 (AP).—United Nations Mediator Sir Owen Dixon was reliably reported tonight to be planning to leave for Europe Wednesday to prepare a report on the failure of his mission to end the Indian-Pakistan conflict over Kashmir.

Collapse of his bid to end the four-year-old dispute was accepted by observers here as final.

Reliable informants said the mediator found the disputants unable or unwilling to agree to even a preliminary basis for ending the dispute.

Worth Clark's Lead In Idaho Cut to 899

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—With official returns from six counties still lacking, D. Worth Clark held only a 899-vote lead over Senator Glen H. Taylor in their Democratic primary race for the Senate nomination.

The returns are based on official results reported to the Secretary of State by 38 counties and on unofficial returns from six counties. All returns are subject to a recheck by the State Board of Canvassers, which will meet here Monday afternoon.

Changes in Rules Expected To Boost Marine Recruiting

Marine Corps recruiters yesterday announced changes in regulations which, they believe, may increase enlistments in the Corps.

Officers said they have been authorized to enlist men in the Marine Corps Reserve for an indefinite period. Previously, only Regular service enlistments were being accepted.

In addition, the recruiters may now enlist men for the Regular service for either three- or four-year periods.

Age limits remain the same, from 17 to 28 years. Parents' consent is required for 17-year-olds. Men with dependents are not accepted for first enlistment.

Meanwhile, the Army announced that some doctors, dentists and nurses called to active duty, will be allowed to remain at home until their units complete their training.

In the case of medical personnel with units staffing evacuation, general and station hospitals, convalescent centers, general laboratories and dispensaries, and hospital trains, only those actually required for training or support will be recalled, the Army said.

Others would await a warning order for the unit's deployment, and meanwhile continue civilian practice.

Jet-Flying Guards Take 12 Fast Trips

Jet fighter planes of the 121st "White House" Squadron of the D. C. National Guard yesterday took off on cross-country flights to give pilots training in navigation and in gauging fuel consumption.

Twelve F-84 Thunderjets made the jaunts from their base at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., to other jet fields and back.

The D. C. Air National Guard is going through its annual field training period, which will end Saturday. Also stationed at Andrews is Detachment A, 213th Air Service Group which services the 121st jets.

The 113th Fighter Group Headquarters and 213th Service Group Headquarters of the D. C. Air Guard are training at Byrd Field in Sandston, Va., near Richmond.

At Andrews Base yesterday the 121st Squadron held an "open house" for families of squadron members. A tour of the base included inspection of jet fighters, base operations, and hangars.

Rep. Scott 'Sure' Russia Is Aiding Reds in Korea

With the United States Twenty-fourth Division in Korea, Aug 20 (U.P.). Representative Hugh D. Scott, jr. (R., Pa.) today said that material captured by Americans shows positive evidence Russia is aiding the North Korean Communists.

Scott and Representative Henry Latham (R., N. Y.), on a tour of the Changnyong bulge, were shown three captured 122-mm. Russian artillery pieces.

"We now have positive proof of Russian help," Scott said.

More Whole Blood Needed, Services Say

The Armed Forces have requested the Red Cross to step up collection of whole blood for our combat units in Korea, it has been announced.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Red Cross president, said in a statement, "I am confident that our American people who donated blood so generously in World War II will again respond wholeheartedly to this request. The additional volume must be procured through our Red Cross regional centers and from other sources as well."

Up to now needed supplies of whole blood came from volunteer military and civilian donors in Japan. Larger amounts of blood and plasma are now also needed for the expanding armed forces in the United States.

Defense Secretary Johnson announced in July the Red Cross had been named the official blood procurement agency for the armed services. The Red Cross now operates 34 regional centers and 46 mobile units serving hospitals in 38 States. Six more centers will be opened shortly.

Blood shipments will be flown regularly from the West Coast to depots in Japan by Military Air Transport Service. Civilian blood supplies will be maintained by increasing blood donations throughout the Nation.

To avoid delay and inconvenience to donors, the Regional Blood Center here requests prospective donors to phone the center for appointments at REpublic 8300, Ext. 511. The center is open for donations Mondays, 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.; Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

100 Jewish Veterans To Give Blood Today

The District of Columbia Department of the Jewish War Veterans will answer the Red Cross call today for emergency donations of blood for the armed forces in Korea.

More than 100 Jewish Veterans will report at 7 p. m. to the Red Cross building, 1730 E st. nw., in response to the hurry-up request for whole blood, according to the organization's secretary, Louis A. Litman.

China Reds Invite Nehru to Peiping

New Delhi, Aug. 20 (AP).—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru has been invited to Peiping by the Chinese Communists and is thinking seriously of accepting in order to press India's campaign to end the fighting in Korea.

This was disclosed today by official sources. They did not say the invitation was connected with Korea, but made clear Nehru sees it as a possible opportunity to further efforts toward settling the war.

These sources said Nehru, who has not yet replied to the invitation, either will go to Peiping or will lead an Indian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly in New York next month. He will take the course that seems the more practicable means of helping resolve the deteriorating international situation.

Plan Still Being Studied

India suggested at Lake Success a week ago that the United Nations Security Council entrust to its small-nation members the task of drafting a peace plan.

This proposal, by India's chief delegate, Sir Benegal N. Rau, would have the representatives of India, Yugoslavia, Cuba, Egypt, Norway and Ecuador act as a sort of "Little Security Council" with powers to make recommendations to the full Council.

Thus far, only Yugoslavia and France have expressed support of the plan, which still is not in print. Other nations have refrained from committing themselves until details are made known.

There have been reports the Chinese Communists want a negotiated settlement of the Korean war. Chou En-lai, Red China premier, suggested that Asian nations mediate the conflict. A British Commonwealth source said this offer was conveyed to the Indian Ambassador at Peiping last month.

Presumably this could provide a basis of discussion in opening peace talks if Nehru goes to Peiping.

India is supporting the U. N. action in Korea, but favors seating the Chinese Communists in place of the Nationalist regime in the world peace organization.

"Complacently Doing Nothing"

Nehru has declared India is not following a policy of neutrality, but one of independence of action.

"What I am afraid of is that we will sit complacently doing nothing," he said.

Nehru reportedly is concerned lest U. N. troops be driven out of Korea entirely, in which case he believes it would require at least two months to assemble enough troops to mount an invasion for a U. N. reconquest of Korea.

By South Koreans

Yanks Get Foxholes Dug For 30 Cents

Tokyo, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—In a lot of ways the Korean war is just like a lot of others to the American GI—but in many others it's different.

Americans in Korea still cuss the muggy heat and the steep hills the way they did in World War II. They still complain about the mud and the dust and the eternal moving around.

They're still digging foxholes everywhere they go—but one difference in this war is that sometimes you don't have to dig your own. Frequently you can get a South Korean to do it for you.

This doesn't apply to GI's at the front, but in areas close behind, where civilians have not yet been cleared out and which have been shelled frequently. The practice is to hire a native to dig a foxhole for you.

Money Bulges in Pockets

During a month in Korea, I had at least 10 foxholes dug for me by South Koreans at a cost of about 300 wans (about 30 cents) a hole.

The Army will sell South Korean wans to GIs at the rate of 1800 to one GI dollar. The South Korean wan is larger than the American dollar and made of slicker paper. A GI usually buys about $5 worth, or 9000, which makes a wad in his pocket the size of a pocket novel folded in the middle.

The wan can be used to buy fruit such as Korean watermelons, which look like the American variety but have the shape and size of a canteloupe and grow as large as a rubber beach ball. When I first reached Korea you could buy three or four for 100 wan, but now the price has zoomed as high as 500 a melon.

You can buy peaches and grapes, but most have been green so far. There is a yellow melon that looks like a squash but tastes like a green honeydew melon.

The medics keep warning GIs not to eat these things, but they do, and nobody has died yet.

The biggest difference between this war and others is almost a total lack of what used to be called, politely, "fraternization" between GIs and native women. In the past wars this was almost immediate, whether women were allies or enemies.

In Korea there is virtually none of this. During the month I roamed around South Korea I never saw one GI "fraternizing" with a Korean girl, or anything remotely approaching it.

GIs Given Warning

Koreans are not as clean as the Japanese. This probably has been caused in part by the fact that a large percentage of the South Korean population has been fleeing southward for nearly two months. But nevertheless, their appearance alone keeps women and GIs far apart.

You almost never see a Korean girl between 14 and 21 along the roads or in villages. They must be some place, but you seldom see them.

The medics warn that the venereal disease rate is extremely high among South Koreans.

Leaflets on Reds Promise Yanks 'Fine Treatment'

On the Southwest Korean Front, Aug. 19 (Delayed) (AP).—On the bodies of some dead North Korean troops, United States Thirty-Fifth Regiment infantrymen today found bundles of English-language leaflets inviting Americans to surrender and promising fine treatment.

The slain Reds apparently had been assigned to spread the leaflets behind the lines. The Americans laughed at the effort.

Only a few hours earlier they had received from a Korean an eyewitness account of how captured Americans are treated.

This Korean said the Reds captured seven Americans who were sleeping in a field, beat them and finally shot them to death when they refused to divulge their unit positions.

The Red propaganda leaflets, in startling contrast, included a picture of a pretty Korean girl, making up a cot for an American prisoner and a picture of prisoners lounging "in their reading room."

There also was a crudely retouched picture purporting to show American prisoners parading with banners calling on America to cease "interfering in Korean internal affairs."

Bomber Made Memorial

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 20 (U.P.).—The "Memphis Belle," a B-17 Flying Fortress of World War II, was dedicated as a battle memorial here today.

Yugoslav Bishop Is Consecrated

Belgrade, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—A Roman Catholic bishop has been consecrated in Yugoslavia for the first time since the Communists seized power under Marshal Tito, church sources said today.

On July 25, 1950, the Bishop of Pazin, a northern Adriatic diocese, was consecrated, apparently with the full knowledge of the government.

The ceremony at Pazin followed a secret meeting of the Council of Bishops at Zagreb early this spring—the first such meeting in the four years since Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac, primate of Yugoslavia, was sentenced to 16 years imprisonment after having been found guilty of collaboration.

The fact that the council meeting took place indicated a definite softening in government policy toward the church and some well informed observers believed that the Communists, having broken the economic and political power of Roman Catholicism, were now attempting to arrange a truce.

Hungarian Catholics Honor St. Stefan

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 20 (AP).—Hungary's Roman Catholics packed churches today to celebrate St. Stefan's Day. The Communist government ignored any formal observance of the day honoring Hungary's first monarch, who ruled nearly 1000 years ago.

This is official "constitution day" in Hungary, marking the first anniversary of the constitution of the People's (Communist) Republic. Budapest papers commented editorially on this but made no mention of St. Stefan.

Unified European Army Plan Fails To Win Approval

Strasbourg, Aug. 20 (AP).—Plans for a unified European army with an international defense minister, as proposed by Winston Churchill, appeared today to have been junked by the European Consultative Assembly's subcommittee on security.

Leon Maccas of Greece, subcommittee chairman, said it probably would content itself with a declaration of principles at its meeting Monday instead of trying to work out a complete army plan.

Other officials predicted the subcommittee would bring out a project for a European defense convention and provide for "proper democratic control" through the Council of Europe, the continent's unofficial parliament.

CONTROLS—From Pg. 1

Vote Set Today on Controls

as a rider to a bill dealing with economic problems.

Similarly, Republican ranks are not united on the rider, many GOP Senators also holding that the amendment is not germane and has not been considered properly by the appropriate committee nor debated on the floor.

Under procedure to be followed today, there will be only 10 minutes of debate, equally shared between the two parties, on each amendment.

A GOP-sponsored drive to eliminate entirely the permission to the President to impose price and wage ceilings and rationing will also be defeated, Maybank has predicted.

Dangerous Deception

Actually, however, passage of that amendment would probably suit the White House much better than certain other proposals that will be offered to limit administrative freedom in invoking such controls. For the President has never asked for wage and price fixing authority. If he gets the power, however, he does not want to be hog-tied in the way he applies it.

In a strong letter on Friday to Vice President Barkley, Mr. Truman warned that enactment of some of the pending amendments would be "tragic." He said they would provide "inflexible, patchwork price controls" and would effect a "dangerous deception" on the public.

The President insisted that he needed prompt passage of the rest of the measure to prevent inflation. The powers he seeks are authority to allocate and give priority to scarce materials, control inventories, restrict installment and housing credit, and finance expansion of defense production.

Last night the Congress of Industrial Organizations issued a statement that amounted to a set of footnotes and documentation to Mr. Truman's letter. It described in some detail the effect of some of the pending amendments, claiming that they would make the bill "a fraud and a fake."

Nathan Cowan, the CIO's legislative director, called some of the amendments "union busting," others as likely to force price increases, costing consumers "billions of dollars."

Guaranteed Profits

Picking up a current witticism on Capitol Hill, the CIO implied that the measure, officially the Defense Production Act of 1950, was rapidly being made into the Guaranteed Profits Act of 1950.

Already tentatively approved by voice vote are amendments guaranteeing reasonable profits to all segments of the meat processing and packing industry, and to the processors of all farm products.

The CIO argued that two amendments, offered by Senators Bricker (R., Ohio) and Williams (R., Del.), would "grossly discriminate against workers". They would require that both wage and price ceillings be based on the same period, just before the Korean conflict. But, said the CIO, at that time prices had risen far beyond wage rates in contracts negotiated many months before.

An amendment by Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.) would force the President to allocate scarce materials to all civilian users. The Administration wishes, however, to allocate such items only to military producers, without having to fix controls indefinitely all the way through the economy.

"All Or Nothing"

Wherry and Bricker also propose that no prices could be controlled until there was a general and complete series of controls on all items. This "all or nothing" scheme would prevent the President from imposing selective controls on individual items.

The CIO called it an "impossible prescription . . . deliberately designed" to make the price control section of the bill unworkable.

Another amendment by Bricker would forbid any limitation of the amount of a manufacturer's product in his highest priced lines. During the war, the OPA had to make such limitations, because many producers gave up low-cost items and concentrated on those at the high end of their line.

Thus, some shirtmakers gave up work shirts and produced quantities of expensive sports shirts, on which they received higher price ceilings and higher profits.

In his letter last weekend, Mr. Truman noted that, in general, many of the amendments were exactly those enacted in 1946, during the period when OPA was being liberalized and liquidated. They were certainly not suitable for a period just at the beginning, rather than the end, of controls, he implied.

Roanoke Crowds Bid Sad Farewell To Reserve Outfit

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 20 (AP).—Roanoke's Marine Reserve unit, the first from this area to be called to active duty, left on a special train from the Norfolk and Western station today.

A throng of people, including Mayor A. R. Minton, City Manager Arthur S. Owens and Vinton's Mayor W. R. McGee were present to say farewell. Judge A. H. Hopkins of Rocky Mount had but a few brief moments to chat with his son, Capt. William B. Hopkins, the unit's busy commanding officer.

Wives, mothers, sweethearts, and fathers, too, fought bravely to hold back their feelings. Dry eyes were not easy to find.

Arab Chief Warns Allies Of Revolt

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Emir Abdel-Krim, legendary hero of the Moroccan Riff campaigns, warned today that smouldering revolt in North Africa will explode into a new "Korea" unless its 30 million people win their independence from France and Spain.

The leader of the North African liberation movement said the people in Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco will not fight alongside the Western powers in a new world war as long as their homelands were under foreign control.

The Korean war was the inevitable outcome of "mistakes" by the Western powers and the United Nations in imposing "counterfeit governments that thrive only on corruption and oppression," the Arab chieftain said in an interview.

When war breaks out these people have no cause to fight for, Abdel-Krim added.

This is what is happening with the South Koreans today. It is the same case with the people of Indo-China, who will not fight against their brethren attempting to liberate the country from the imperialists and their puppet Bao Dai regime," he said.

U. S. Tariff Concessions Aid Foreign Economy

By The Associated Press

A State Department specialist in foreign trade said yesterday that United States tariff concessions have reduced foreign aid requirements by helping other countries earn their own way.

The official, Winthrop Brown, director of the Office of International Trade Policy, said that at the same time import fee reductions under the reciprocal trade program have been handled so as not to injure American industry.

U. S. Ballot Proposed for Men Overseas

By The Associated Press

Two Republican Senators proposed yesterday that the men fighting in Korea and those in occupattion forces elsewhere be supplied with overseas ballots to vote in the congressional elections.

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), told a reporter he and Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) will offer in the Senate this week a measure patterned after the Federal war ballot law used in the 1942 and 1944 elections.

"I think all of the fighting men ought to have an opportunity to vote in what seems likely to be a critical electon anid I'm afraid some of them won't have the chance unless there is some kind of Federal ballot," Bridges said.

He said he has asked the Senate's legislative counsel to draft a bill and supply the Senate with information on how many States it would affect.

Although Bridges didn't say so, Republicans apparently believe they can get better than an even break out of the ballots cast by members of the Armed Forces this year.

The theory of some party leaders seems to be that dissatisfaction with what they call the lack of clearly stated war aims, plus deficiencies in equipment and manpower in the Korean fighting, will react against the Democrats.

As the law now stands, the Federal Government handles postcards for applications for State absentee ballots and helps supply information about voting.

Representative Nixon, the Republican senatorial candidate in California, already has proposed a waiver on the present 1-ounce limitation on free airmail to accommodate GI absentee ballots.

He said California law prohibits mailing of ballots before October 18, too late for them to reach members of the armed forces by regular mail to be returned before the November 13 deadline.

Army Shifts Chief News Point In Korea From Taegu to Pusan

From Wire Dispatches

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today announced new communications requirements for correspondents in Korea making Pusan, instead of Taegu, the main transmission point for filing war news to Tokyo.

The announcement said the new requirements were put into effect by U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea.

From Pusan, correspondents will be permitted to file their copy to Tokyo by teletype. Telephone facilities also will be granted them.

Transmission of dispatches direct from Taegu to Tokyo was reduced to a maximum of 2000 words on a pooled basis to be sent between midnight and daylight (10 a. m. to about 3 p. m. EDT).

Correspondents may use also a daily air courier service to send dispatches from Taegu to Pusan. On arrival at Pusan, the dispatches will be transmitted to Tokyo by teletype.

Communications from Korea to the United States by way of Tokyo were impeded also by sun spots. That interfered with radio reception.

The telephone line between Japan and Korea, which was broken in two places Saturday, was repaired temporarily today.

The two breaks, each about 25 feet long, were discovered between Yokaiichi and Nagoya in central Japan.

Indicating sabotage was suspected, a signal corps spokesman said the breaks apparently were "not accidental."

Army communications were not disrupted by the new breaks because there are alternative channels of communication.

The Army previously had removed press telephones and teletype equipment at Taegu, saying it needed them elsewhere.

Correspondents at Taegu thereupon had had to scrounge for Army telephones for brief dispatches from the front.

Meanwhile, some correspondents were told they would have to pay $77 to fly from Tokyo to Korea.

An attempt to collect fares for such travel was made about two weeks ago, but was abandoned.

AS THE AD WRITERS would say, "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Only nine more days left to win yourself a wonderful filet mignon dinner for two, with all the trimmin's." Parchey's "Contest" closes at midnight, August 30, 1950, and no entries postmarked after that date can be considered. The "Contest" is to supply a slogan (in 25 words or less) that will stimulate people to give Washington taxicab drivers minimum tips of twenty cents each. This, you may recall, is part of my "one man crusade" for a better break for the cabbie, inspired by the dolefull account of his plight by my friend, Stanley Rideout. Says Stanley, "Since we got our last fare increase, prices of cabs have gone up 100%, and gasoline nearly 50%. So today, the money we get for fares just about covers our cost of operation. We have to depend on our tips to pay rent and raise our families." This being the case, I think a movement to give the taxi driver a minimum tip of 20 cents per trip is eminently justified. Stanley's suggested slogan is "Tip at least twenty, you got plenty!" I suspect that you, gentle reader, can do considerably better. Bring (or mail) your entries to me at Parchey's, 19th and K sts., nw.

Competition is a wonderful thing and, I am convinced, a stimulant generously used by Nature. Here's an example: this year an enormous amount of favorable publicity has been given to the newly-discovered super-jumbo shrimp being taken from the Atlantic. In the face of this competition, the Gulf of Mexico is this year producing the tenderest, finest-flavored and most delicately textured Jumbo Fantail Shrimp that it has ever been my pleasure to enjoy. Our sea food chef, Norman Pressley, tells me that he has never prepared shrimp that respond so enthusiastically to his ministrations. We get them "green" or raw, packed in ice, direct from Biloxi, Miss. We peel them and then vein them by splitting each one wide open for the full length of the back. Then they're dipped in a slightly salted mixture of lightly-beaten eggs and milk, and rolled in the crisp crumbs of fresh bread, toasted in our own ovens. When these Jumbo Fantails are deep fried in delicious soy oil, they curl back into their natural shape, and are served to you golden brown, crispy-dry and piping hot. If you have ever eaten shrimp dipped in cracker meal or flour, you have experienced the disillusionment of discovering a soggy mass under the tempting looking browned surface. But dipped in bread crumbs, as we cook them, no fat is absorbed by the thin, flaky crust. Each shrimp is dry and crunchy all the way through, as it should be. The fine, natural flavor is preserved, the delicious meat remains tenderly succulent, the texture retains its delicacy. You should really try our Shrimp Platter. It's only a dollar and thirty-five cents, a complete meal. Our address: 19th at K nw.

From time to time somebody asks me, "Why is it that your whiskey sours always seem to taste a little better than anybody else's?" My answer is that our mixologists make each sour individually. A little sugar goes into the bottom of the cocktail shaker, the freshly squeezed juice of a nice, plump lemon, a generous jigger of fine Glenmore whiskey. Then a few hunks of ice and the whole thing is subjected to a very vigorous shaking. And the shaking is the secret of the special zest our sours enjoy. Shaking aireates a mixed drink, makes it sparkling bright and almost "alive" . . . a quality that can't be imparted by squirting soda water into a mass-produced base. Your Parchey whiskey sour will be garnished with a slice of orange and a maraschino cherry and makes a matchless prelude to your summer luncheon. It's only 50 cents, too, so you better rush over and sample one right away. Come to 19th St. at K. N. W.

U. N. Forces Crush 30,000 Red Troops drive toward Kyongju, 20 miles southwest of Pohang, nine days ago. The Reds planned to split their forces at Kyongju, he said, sending one spearhead west toward Taegu and the other south toward Pusan, main United States supply port on the southeast coast.

Two days ago, the South Koreans counterattacked, using the Reds' own tactics. They cut the enemy's supply lines at the rear, smashed his column at the front and squeezed it from both sides.

American artillery, tanks and warplanes supported the attack and "did a wonderful job," the spokesman said.

The North Koreans were sent reeling north toward Yongdok, apparently to regroup.

[The South Koreans, the United Press reported, said that 3800 Communists had been killed.]

The spokesman said Pohang and Kigye, 10 miles inland, are safe in South Korean hands.

Americans hold the airfield, 6 miles southeast of Pohang, and are reported using the airstrip operationally.

A battle summary from General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters said South Korean units continued to advance north and west of Pohang and Kigye "against little opposition."

South Korean marines, meanwhile, were disclosed to have made two more amphibious landings against the enemy—a total of three in three days.

Having landed Thursday on Tokchok Island, off the west coast 35 miles southwest of Inchon, the port of Seoul, they then landed on the extreme south coast Friday and captured the town of Tongyong, and on Saturday on Yonghung, 18 miles east of Tokchok.

A Far East Naval Headquarters release said the south coast landing was made under cover of Republic of Korea navy guns and that attempts of the Reds to escape by sea were thwarted.

Tongyong is a short distance from Koje Island, in the East China Sea, 25 miles southwest of Pusan.

Aim to Forestall Red Attack

The South Korean Marines reported that in taking Tongyong they killed 350 North Koreans, captured 37 and seized much booty, including 12 big 120-mm. guns.

Two North Korean divisions were reported moving toward Tongyong.

An American adviser to the South Korean Navy, Lieut. Comdr. D. C. Holley, said the landing was made to prevent Communist attack on Koje Island.

A Tokyo headquarters spokesman said the Reds so far had been unable to get set for a jump-off against Taegu. He attributed their failure to disorder and confusion behind their lines, mainly owing to American air and naval blows. The spokesman said enemy supply routes had been hard hit.

The officer said evidence of confusion and disorganization in the enemy's rear was increasing. Air strikes have crippled transportation, communication between adjoining battle units has deteriorated, and it is likely Communist officers' casualties have been high.

In some sectors the shortage of locomotives is so acute, the spokesman said, people, oxen and horses have been used to pull railway boxcars.

Repeated Red attacks have been thrown off balance, he said, because one unit fails to respond to a logical battle plan. This indicates inadequate communications between fighting units.

But the Reds still are probing all along the line trying to find a soft spot for their long-heralded attack, he indicated.

He mentioned that reports persisted the Reds had received some big Russian Joseph Stalin III tanks, 50-tonners with 122-mm. guns, but that none have appeared in battle.

The summary said elements of the United States Twenty-fourth Infantry Division and First Marine Brigade wiped out the Communists' Changnyong beachhead east of the Kaktong River on the central front and recaptured all ground east of the river in that sector. The area is 23 miles southwest of Taegu.

Mopping up continued, it said.

The Reds originally had thrown 12,000 men of their fourth division into that bridgehead. That division now has been shattered and written off.

Thirteen enemy artillery pieces and other weapons and equipment were captured in the bloody erasure of the bridgehead.

Chen Predicts Indo-China Move By Communists

Taipei, Formosa, Aug. 20 (AP).—Chinese Nationalist Premier Chen Cheng predicted today the next big Communist move would come in Indo-China.

"Moscow's fifth column will start an eruption in Indo-China just as its fifth column did in Korea," the Premier said in a city hall address to Nationalist army supply officers.

Peking Tells of Drive

Hong Kong, Aug. 20, (U.P.).—Communist Ho Chi Minh's guerillas, after five years of hit-and-run jungle raids, are getting ready to launch a general offensive against the French army in Indo-China, Peiping radio announced today.

The radio at Peiping, capitol of Communist China, quoted Nguyen Chit Hanh as saying: "Our people are now preparing to launch a general counter-offensive after four years of hard fighting against the powerful enemy . . . French colonial troops financed and armed by American imperialists."

Big Three Experts On Foreign Affairs Meet Here Aug. 30

French, British and American foreign affairs experts will meet here on August 30 to lay the "real groundwork" for the Big Three foreign ministers conference to begin in New York September 12, Undersecretary of State James E. Webb disclosed yesterday.

Webb appeared on the NBC television program, "Battle Report, Washington" with Assistant Secretaries of State Dean Rusk and Edward W. Barrett.

Reds' Fire Power Held Waning lives daily watching at close range all possible avenues of aproach for armor.

Early today, for example, Lieut. Lewis Millett of Boston, an artillery observer attached to the Third Battalion of the Twenty-seventh Regiment, was sitting in a foxhole when he heard the noisy approach of enemy tanks. He called for artillery support and directed the fire until the tanks had waddled to within 50 yards of his position.

Two Tanks Disabled

Millett had a few uneasy moments when shells from 105-mm. howitzers smothered the landscape directly in front of him. But he had the satisfaction of seeing two tanks disabled and the third flash on its running lights and head for the rear. The enemy attack was broken up by the artillery fire before the Red troops behind the tanks were near our line.

The effectiveness of American gunnery has increased greatly, and we now are throwing 10 to 20 times as much steel as is coming in. But the Communists still have us outranged with their 122-mm. gun, which can shoot 20,000 yards and which the enemy has employed mainly in counter-battery fire.

Our heaviest weapon in use here—the 155-mm. howitzer—ranges about 16,000 yards. Artillerymen say we need the American 8-inch howitzer, our most accurate gun, to answer the Russian 122-mm. effectively.

During his visit to the front, General Walker remarked that the Americans were exacting "a hell of a big toll" for the recent "disappointments and disasters." He said, "Our men are fighting well, and as long as we are fighting we are not in for any disaster."

Three Major Crises Noted

Taking the optimistic view, the general opinion here is that the enemy will wear himself out in another month in an attempt to crash the beachhead. Barring intervention by Communist China or Russia, the North Koreans presumably would try to contain the American force during the winter.

General Walker noted there had been three major crises—the loss of Taejon, the enemy breakthrough on the Naktong River front and the temporary loss of Pohang.

There will be "plenty of fighting and plenty of disappointment ahead," he said. Apart from minor local counter-offensives, the initiative still lies with the North Koreans. "We've had to play this thing by ear," General Walker said. "We are terribly outnumbered."

Visits by Foreign Groups to Dispel Red Claims Urged

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Senator William Benton (D., Conn.) urged today that commissions of 100 persons from each nation be invited to visit this country and disprove Communist propaganda about it.

Speaking on the University of Chicago roundtable over NBC, the Senator said Americans find it hard to believe that "outrageous" Communist propaganda against the United States is effective.

He said he believed, however, that the "very wide appeal" of Communist propaganda was "the most important fact in today's world."

Benton said the effectiveness of Russian propaganda was the reason for his proposal that Congress appropriate 500 million dollars for a counter-propaganda program, with 200 million dollars to be spent for a world-wide radio network.

Surgeon Held As Rebel Aide

chief Naw Seng to escape across the Chinese border.

Naw Seng last year joined his Kachin rebel forces with the Karens, and together they captured the central Burma city of Toungoo. When government forces overwhelmed the rebels, Naw Seng was reported to have escaped and joined the Chinese Communists.

Kachin rebels, reportedly under Naw Seng, last September occupied Namkham—80 miles north of Lashio, starting point of the wartime Burma Road to China.

Kachin state troops drove out the rebels after a fierce battle raged around the Seagrave Hospital at Namkshan, where the rebels were intrenched.

Burma has been plagued by civil war since it won its independence from the British in January, 1948. Since then, the Karens have been fighting to set up a separate state.

Seagrave, youngest of four children, was born to an American missionary family in Tharrawaddy, South Burma, in 1897. He learned to speak in the Karen language before he learned English. His father, the Rev. A. S. Seagrave, and his grandfather, great-great-grandfather and several aunts and uncles had been Baptist missionaries in Burma. He received his M. D. degree from Johns Hopkins in 1921, and started his mission hospital with a wastebasketful of medical instruments discarded by a Baltimore hospital.

Seagrave's famous 1942 trek with Stilwell was recounted in his best-seller, "Burma Surgeon." The sequel, "Burma Surgeon Returns," had an equally large circulation.

The surgeon is highly regarded by his Burmese nurses whom he trained. For nearly a quarter century he has conducted a one-man war against disease and human suffering in the wilds of Burma.

West Germans Cheer Opponents of Arming

At London Meeting

U. S. Will Ask Arms Haste By Pact Allies

London, Aug. 20 (AP).—The United States will tell its Atlantic Pact allies Tuesday they are dragging their feet in the race to rearm against Russia.

This word, informed sources said, will be passed to the 12-nation Council of Deputies by its American chairman, Charles M. Spofford, at its second session here.

Spofford, upon arriving here tonight, told newsmen that he found in Washington "a very great determination that the United States is prepared to do its full part in the speedy build-up of the defenses of the North Atlantic area—based on the confidence that the other members are prepared to do their full part."

"Returning now for the second session, we hope to take other concrete steps in that direction," he added.

Immediate job of the deputies is to arm and man Western defenses from the Arctic to the Aegean inside the next two years. Four main subjects are on their agenda for Tuesday:

1. Manpower—How to treble—at least—combat forces available for defending Europe. Present estimated Western strength in Europe is around 14 divisions.

2. Money—The French have suggested financing the rearmament program by setting up a pool to which each nation would contribute proportionately. The British have a counterplan which they base on "fair shares for all." It's still secret.

3. Arms—To get production wheels rolling at once, without too greatly damaging economic recovery. Few agree on the extent to which extra burdens should be undertaken.

4. Organization—This includes setting up an international staff and providing closer coordination between agencies.

The American argument is that some nations fail sufficiently to grasp the urgency of the situation.

French insistence, for instance, that the United States should send a minimum of six divisions to be based permanently in Europe is held to leave out of account the American effort in Korea.

The French counter that by pointing to their burden in strife-torn Indochina.

The complaint against Britain seems to be that at the end of this country's three-year $9,520,000,000 defense program for which the United States is asked to help pay, there will be few, if any, more combat divisions under arms.

Frankfurt, Aug. 20 (AP).—A gathering of 10,000 Germans applauded wildly today when speakers at the first International Socialist rally here since 1928 condemned proposals for rearming Germany.

Dr. Erich Ollenhauer, deputy chairman of the West German Socialists, declared that conditions in Western Germany are too unsettled for such an "adventure" as remilitarization.

His declaration came only two days after West German Chancelor Dr. Konrad Adenauer was quoted as proposing creation of a West German defense force equal in size and strength to the powerful East German "Peoples Army." Informed Berlin estimates put this Communist force at about 80,000 men.

"We (German Socialists) say 'No' to German remilitarization because it would only have political and psychological disadvantages and would serve nobody," said Ollenhauer.

Solomon Grumbach, leading French Socialist, led off the attack by declaring that remilitarization would destroy the new West German democracy and arouse suspicion in other countries.

Neither Grumbach nor Ollenhauer referred directly to proposals for setting up a unified European army in which Germans would serve.

Sovereignty, Heavy Arms Asked by Manteuffel

Bonn, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Former Gen. Hasso von Manteuffel, a leader of the German rearmament movement, today asked full sovereignty for Germany and heavy weapons for a new German army.

"Only a free man can carry arms," Manteuffel said in an article in the diplomatic bulletin, an unofficial publication.

Tydings Vows Fight for UMT, Asks Backing

Chairman Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said yesterday he will fight for passage of a universal military training bill this year but is "doubtful" of success.

Warning that "time is precious," he appealed for public support to get the preparedness measure through an election-minded Congress.

"If we have UMT in time we may not get into a shooting war with Russia," Tydings said.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson asked Congress last week to provide at once for universal training of youths 17 to 21 for at least six months.

But the next day President Truman told a news conference that while he favors UMT, he would not press for action this year because he did not want to clutter up a congressional program already full of controversal war-emergency bills.

With House and Senate members hoping to wind up legislative business by September 2 and go home for election campaigning. Tydings faced an uphill fight even to get UMT on the calendar. But he promised to do his "level best."

His committee will begin hearings on the measure Tuesday, with Johnson, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and George N. Craig, national commander of the American Legion, as the first witnesses.

Shadowy Thinking

Without attempting to mix into the political contest between Gov. Earl Warren and James Roosevelt for the Governorship of California, we may note that the Roosevelt proposal for erection of "shadow cities" in the interior of California is symptomatic of the shadowy thinking now being given in too many States and cities to the necessity for orderly and intelligent planning for civilian defense.

Mr. Roosevelt electrified California by his charge that Governor Warren had left the State helpless in the face of a possible atomic attack. He said that the threat now facing the Nation required California to construct "shadow cities" in the interior of California capable of accommodating four million possible evacuees from the San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego areas.

This newspaper has said often that it is urgent that adequate plans be made for civilian defense. But it cannot be said too often that the urgency is not so great as to preclude careful consideration of the facts. For instance, it has not been explained how many trucks, or trains, or automobiles, or airplanes would be required to move four million persons an unstated number of miles to a specified "shadow city." It has not been explained how much one, or several, shadow cities would cost in terms of war needed materials, what the proposal, in the event that attack does not come, would do to the lives and plans and properties of persons in the specified areas. If such a proposal were seriously entertained what would happen to real estate values at this moment, without consideration of the point that all values would be destroyed if an atomic attack came? To be realistic on civil defense is to have a sense of the practical.

Presidential Rebuke

In an admonitory letter addressed to Vice President Barkley, but aimed at Congress, President Truman voices his concern at the way in which the powers he has requested for allocating scarce materials and checking inflation through credit controls are being "whittled down." He is also alarmed by the avalanche of amendments to the defense production bill which would limit his authority to control wages and prices. This does not mean that he has changed his mind on wage and price controls. He is still against using them, but implies that the amendatory zeal of Congress, by endangering his own program, might induce him to "clamp down general price and wage controls."

The President's indictment is generalized except for his reference to the fact that the power to control commodity speculation has been dropped from both the House and Senate bills, and control over credit on existing housing has also been eliminated. Both these omissions would limit his power to check inflation in areas where controls are badly needed. No mention is made of the restrictions imposed on his authority to control prices of agricultural products and processed foods, although that section of the controls bill is shockingly inadequate—a prime illustration of the evils of "special purpose" legislation, so vigorously denounced by Mr. Truman. We wish the President had aimed a few telling blows at the congressional farm bloc responsible for the manhandling of this part of the program. But perhaps that is asking too much, since a direct attack would have alienated a good many stanch Administration supporters—in an election year, too.

Before a final vote is taken on the defense production bill, the Senate will have to dispose of about 20 amendments, not including 12 that, according to Senator Maybank, are "duplicating" amendments. That admission alone is evidence of the confusion caused by attempts to rewrite a complicated measure from the floor. Some of the amendments, passed and pending, would, as the President charges, "assure some special treatment or privilege for a particular industry or commodity." Others are patently designed to embarrass or harass the Administration. Then there is the Mundt-Ferguson rider calling for the registration of Communists and Communist-front organizations. Regardless of the merits—or demerits—of this proposal, it is indefensible to offer it as an amendment to the pending defense production bill.

It is hard to understand why Congress insists on giving a reluctant President powers of control over wages and prices when it does not trust him to use discretion in exercising them. For legislators undoubtedly realize that effective administration of any control program is impossible, unless, to quote the President, it provides "a flexible framework for whatever action might be required under future conditions." Unfortunately the presidential warning comes too late to repair the damage that has been done. The bill passed by the House is defective in many respects; and the Senate has already approved amendments to a similar bill that would further weaken the effectiveness of the control program. The most that can be hoped, therefore, is that the Senate will not attach more obstructive amendments to the pending bill before its final passage, and that some of the "special purpose" amendments already voted will be deleted from the conference bill.

Psychological Arm

Formation of a National Psychological Warfare Strategy Unit ought to mean that at last the United States is to begin an intensive and a coordinated use of this formidable weapon. Wallace Carroll, who has served the State Department as an adviser, has been an eloquent spokesman for a concerted and impressive psychological assault, but so far the job has been occasional and disconnected. The representation of the Departments of State and Defense, the Central Intelligence Agency and the Joint Chiefs of Staff on the new unit, plus liaison with ECA and the National Security Resources Board, should assure not only that there will be one over-all policy, but also that it will be based upon the latest information, that it will merge political and military objectives, and that it will be prepared to use a variety of media.

Certainly the prime need in this sphere is for initiative—not merely to answer Communist propaganda but to lead in the grand strokes. Take, for example, the Communist peace petition which, for all the disclaimers, was a masterpiece of propaganda. Why has the United States not used the truth to initiate something of like appeal and persuasive power? In the psychological field mere negative attempts to meet Communist propaganda will never be enough; we must constantly and boldly evangelize what we stand for.

In this connection the foreign information program, including the Voice of America, is only one of many desirable instruments. The information program has a big job in presenting a full and fair picture of America and in promoting cultural contacts. There also is great need to combine our efforts in this field with those of other free nations to give them added strength—an idea that at last is beginning to take hold in free Europe. But this kind of medium necessarily has limitations in the kind of approach that can be used. The psychological warfare program must have flexibility, and in this respect a private broadcast foundation, which would not be the official voice of the United States Government, might have great utility.

Such a foundation, however, would be an auxiliary to, and not a substitute for, the regular foreign information and education program. There have been a good many criticisms of the results of the information-education program. It still suffers, for instance, from bad programming, from little things such as the location of libraries in the wrong part of town for use by the working man, from operation on too high a level, from the use of exiles who are ridiculed in their own countries. But these are defects in detail, and they are correctable through experience.

They certainly are not an excuse for the reported effort of a House Appropriations Subcommittee to cut drastically the funds for libraries and exchange of persons. A stepped-up psychological warfare program will by no means obviate the need for these personal contacts and outposts of Americanism. Considering the money we are spending on military defense, these elements of the information program are some of the cheapest and most profitable investments we can make.

Medical Service

The House Commerce Committee has done a distinct disservice to the Nation in voting to shelve President Truman's proposed five-year program to provide 250 million dollars of Federal funds for the expansion of facilities of medical, dental and nursing schools and for the assistance of medical students. The committee voted 9 to 8 against reporting the bill, which had already been passed by the Senate. The reason for the opposition, according to news reports, is the fear of creating a precedent—meaning that the measure would be an opening wedge for Federal aid to education and for the health insurance and welfare proposals. The argument is as much beside the point as any objection on the ground of regimentation to economic controls in time of emergency. For the medical measure is a vital element in civil defense. At any time American cities may be under attack, yet doctors, dentists and nurses are so short, with the military services again demanding adequate recruitment, that the situation has become critical.

Not only is the medical measure badly needed, an adequate plan is necessary for distribution of doctors between the military services and the civilian population. Already the services are justifiably complaining that recruitment of doctors is too slow. Medical societies have promised, the latest being the Maryland Medical Society, to start machinery in motion to determine medical mobilization. In 1942 this newspaper declared that most efficient utilization of doctors, as with other classes of manpower, could not be obtained by reliance upon doctors to allocate themselves. We said then "It is an eloquent commentary upon the haphazard character of our program for utilizing manpower . . . that the recruiting of medical men should have been permitted to proceed without prearranged plans for estimating and providing for the minimum medical needs of our civilian population." This remains true in the present situation. In the event of war the minimum medical needs of the civilian population will be enormously beyond anything at likely World War II, and that fact ought to be faced promptly and adequately.

CIA And Its Chief

Retirement of Rear Admiral Roscoe H. Hillenkoeter in favor of Lieut. Gen. W. Bedell Smith gives the much-criticised and much-maligned Central Intelligence Agency a new chief. It is a pity that a qualified civilian could not have been found for this key post. But, barring a civilian, Gen. Bedell Smith is, by common consent, a good choice, and his career and his talents may, indeed, be just the equipment needed for CIA. As chief of staff to General Eisenhower in Europe, he was often called "the general manager" of the expeditionary force. After that he served as Ambassador to Moscow, where, as his book showed, he went to great pains to study Russia and the men who run it.

However, the qualifications needed at CIA go beyond administrative skill and understanding of Russia. At one and the same time the chief must have the prestige of the President and the trust of Congress in his operations. No agency, of course, can be entirely freed from supervision, but CIA, which deals with the knowledge that is vital to our national survival, could not be run successfully if it were subjected to heckling and over-scrutiny. Only if when it fails to deliver is there need for calling it to account.

This was done in the case of the surprise over Korea. But, as it turns out, CIA was hardly to blame for this, for the fact is that for six to nine months prior to the invasion, the North Koreans had been maneuvering constantly above the thirty-eighth parallel, dashing in armored numbers to the border, and then withdrawing after minor brushes. What happened in Korea, evidently, was that a sudden order was given to keep on going. At any moment the same thing could happen in Eastern Germany, where big-scale maneuvers are intermittent. The tactic that was practiced in Korea and is still practiced in Germany appears to have been learned from the Battle of the Bulge, where, we now know, the German general, after some time spent in careering over the landscape, got orders at the last minute to hurl his men and armor at the American line. The tactic seems to be an insurance of a tactical surprise in the absence of knowledge of the intentions of the enemy at the topflight of command.

The task that Gen. Bedell Smith has undertaken is the most difficult as well as the most responsible of the defense assignments. Intelligence is the eyes and ears of our policy-makers. Our safety in these days when we have to live side by side with a more or less mobilized Soviet is dependent upon its efficiency. It must inform, forewarn, interpret. There are many intelligence units in the Government, but CIA must be on top, seeing that no aspect of intelligence work is neglected, correlating what is done, and evaluating it for the policy-makers. Only as this is done well can there be any basis for sound policy judgments. CIA has formal but not actual authority as yet, and has been so pushed around that it has to harbor activity that doesn't properly belong to it, and which has injured its standing. Admiral Hillenkoeter is said always to have preferred the sea duty to which he now returns, and, in addition, has suffered from lack of authority and of self-assertiveness. His experience should be valuable to his successor in building up an agency of stature and effectiveness.

Copper Shortages

Shortages of copper have compelled three large brass companies to abandon their six-day work schedule and return to the five-day week. This enforced curtailment underlines the need for prompt passage of the defense production bill providing for allocation of supplies of scarce materials. It also calls attention to the effect of restoration of the import "tax" on copper at a time when the demand for copper is outrunning available supplies. It is safe to predict that this import "tax" will be passed along to consumers in the form of higher prices for copper products.

The Senate might well devote some of the time spent in debating proposals for curbing price increases to discussion of this import "tax" or tariff, which has been reimposed because its Finance Committee tabled the bill passed by the House continuing its suspension for another year. A spokesman for the copper fabricators is confident that "copper prices would by now have reflected at least the impact of the import tax of 2 cents a pound which was imposed July 1 except for the virtually universal expectation in the industry that the tax would be retroactively suspended by the Senate."

Alaska Land Rights

It is not my intention to use your columns as a forum for continued debate on the subject of native land rights in Alaska. However, I cannot allow Oliver La Farge's letter in the August 16 issue to go unanswered since he and others have instigated a controversy in what I personally believe is a disguised effort to defeat Alaska statehood.

His letter completely distorts the truth. The clause in the Alaska statehood bill to which he objects does not repeal the 1936 law, as he claims. The language would have the effect of holding in abeyance for a probable maximum period of two years the power of the Secretary of the Interior to create reservations in Alaska under the 1936 act until the time that the provisions of the statehood act are carried out. This is not a repeal.

In addition, Secretary Chapman has declared publicly that he will not create any more reservations in Alaska until a national policy regarding Indians is reconsidered thoroughly. Such thorough reconsideration cannot possible take place within the next two years. That is why the whole subject is academic.

Mr. La Farge and others have backtracked considerably since starting their campaign against the inclusion of the language in the statehood bill. At first they claimed that the power of the Secretary of the Interior to create reservations conferred upon that official the right to grant title to reserved lands. In quoting from his letter to Delegate Bartlett, Mr. La Farge neglected to quote all that letter, or that part stating, "Our statement that the natives can now 'obtain clear title by negotiation' is unclear or incomplete. It may require either further Supreme Court litigation or further congressional action to make native titles permanent and final." Thereby his whole initial objection to the language in the statehood bill is nullified.

"Phony" War

A "North Korean" army is shooting shells made in Russia from guns made in Russia. Russia is stalling all progress toward peaceful solutions in the United Nations. And yet our government seems to act on the assumption that there is peace when every shred of evidence one can find indicates there is war. What are we waiting for to prove we are at war, an atom bomb?

What good will be the profits and wages of 1950 if we lose the war? What honor will there be in having won the elections of 1950 if the country is a shambles? Petain and Chamberlain, and their ilk, ruined France and Britain at the beginning of the last war. But there were sounder leaders then who could see what the future held. Enough of following false prophets! We had better listen to Baruch, and Forrestal, and Vinson, and the few others who have their wits about them, just as Britain should have heeded Churchill's warnings in 1930s.

This is the period of the "phony" war, the "cold" war, the "warning" war. This is the breathing spell before the holocaust. We had better be warned while there is still time to arm effectively—if there is still so much time. We will build better before the bombs begin to fall.

Chiang And MacArthur

At least two points in the letters by "Disgusted Chinese" in your August 10 and 17 issues are conspicuously inconsistent.

On the one hand he, a "100 percent American," uses the name "Disgusted Chinese," raps President Chiang of the Chinese republic, and stigmatizes the policy of the legitimate Chinese government as seeking "a new chance to exploit the mainland"; but on the other hand he haughtily vows that he is 100 percent American and, as such, the laws of the United States alone can determine his fairness, and that D. K. Lieu, a Chinese official, has no business to complain about our domestic affairs," while, all the time, he himself makes the mistake of meddling in other peoples' business—if it is a mistake at all.

Owing to the complexity of the interwoven, modern world politics, few, if any, affairs of any one country can be dogmatically defined as purely "domestic"; and because of the necessity of equality and interdependence of nations, no citizen or groups of citizens of any one country is entitled to a strong voice while that of another must keep docilely quiet. "Vatican Mission"

I've been following the comments of your August 10 editorial "Mission To The Vatican" and I say three cheers for you. You presented the article truthfully and without prejudice.

It comes as a shock that so many (so-called) intelligent patriotic citizens (ministers included) could be so blinded by a 400-year-old prejudice that they would bite off their nose to spite their face.

Aside from the fact that an Ambassador to the Vatican is for the best interest of all the people of this country, I'm sure the Commies take great pleasure in the hostilities of certain religious groups against others.

MRS. WILLIAM WASSMER.

As long as the U. S. has at long last gone officially anti-Communist and actually is at war with the Reds it is practical politics and very expedient to reach a "rapprochement" with the Vatican. The Catholics are the only reliable anti-Communist group in this confused vascillating world.

After aligning ourselves with the heathen in the last war, whose treachery is now turned on us, we still find some who are too squeamish toward an alliance with Spain or the Vatican. Centuries ago these two were great and also sinned greatly but they are hardly a menace now. Yes indeed, the squeamish must be a constant source of comfort to the Kremlin.

"No Billy Mitchells"

On August 14 you carried an editorial entitled "No Billy Mitchells." My understanding of the editorial was that, although recent events may have demonstrated that a clever enemy or potential enemy can upset our plans to fight the kind of war affording us the greatest natural advantages, there has not thereby been created any occasion for making Billy Mitchells out of those who warned against such an eventuality. In my opinion, the editorial effectively summarizes the point of view of those who persist in regarding the interservice differences of last year as, to quote your writer, "a Navy insurrection."

The first point that must be made against the views expressed in the editorial is that the Billy Mitchell myth has survived unchallenged too long. Like all myths it has become almost immune to any application of reason; individuals who never heard or read any of Mitchell's public statements and writings inveigh angrily against his "crucifixion." The airpower theories epitomized in the 1920-1930 activities of Mitchell and the Italian, Giulio Douhet, have so assumed the earmarks of a cult that latter-day sympathetic writers are given to reinterpreting the pronouncements of the two, much after the fashion in which Marx-Engels and Lenin are reinterpreted to conform with events.

What, after all, did Billy Mitchell stand for? I submit that the record sustains the fact of his overriding preoccupation with what he called a "unified" or "united" air service—a process-type Executive Department embracing everything and everyone operating in the air medium or contributing toward such operation. It is true that he also advocated a Department of National Defense, but his prior and primary concern was for an independent air force, with or without a superior coordinating authority.

Your editorial writer complained that ". . . the real burden of (the Navy's) argument before and during the congressional hearings last fall was that the Navy should determine its own requirements . . ." It is true enough that through the years the Navy has insisted that, insofar as possible, seamen or sea-air men should judge naval matters; but what was the whole Billy Mitchell fight all about if it was not a crusade to have air matters judged by airmen?

Mitchell's alleged concern for effective organizational coordination did not prevent him from advocating at one point a pattern that would have required the Secretary of War to deal with two independent general staffs: one for the Army and one for the proposed Air Force or Air Corps. In this connection, it should be remembered that the B-36 hearings of last year ended with a statement by the Chief of Staff of the Air Force that those persons best fitted to judge instruments of strategic airpower assured the country that the B-36 was the best airplane for the major task assigned to the Air Force by the then prevailing strategic concept. There might have been no "Navy insurrection" had the Navy felt that it enjoyed comparable autonomy in ruling on questions within its special province.

As your editorial made clear, the so-called strategic concept can never be more than an informed guess, and the actions based upon it are calculated risks. In my opinion the "Navy insurrection" of last year was largely in protest against what the Navy believed was becoming an insufficiently flexible approach.

In 1949 the Air Force alloted to tactical aviation approximately 5 percent of its research and development funds. In late June, 1950, the Tactical Air Force of the United States was commanded by a brigadier general. May not this have been carrying a calculated risk a bit too far?

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Get Acheson, Lay Off Johnson

SOME DAYS AGO, the Republican congressional leaders reached an important decision. At a closed-door meeting attended by such satraps as policy chief Senator Robert Taft and Senate floor leader Kenneth Wherry, it was decided to base Republican strategy in the forthcoming congressional campaign squarely on an all-out attack on Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

At the same meeting, reportedly in response to the passionate pleading of Senator Owen Brewster, it was decided to "lay-off" Brewster's friend, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. This appears to be a rather odd decision, and it calls for an explanation.

Its oddness derives from the fact that, if the public record means anything at all, in the months before Korea Acheson was consistently dead right and Johnson was consistently dead wrong. It was Acheson, after all, who repeatedly and rather desperately warned the country of the danger of our situation, and it was Johnson who equally consistently boasted of nonexistent American strength.

It was Acheson who called for "unity and sacrifice," to "mobilize our total resources" in order to create "situations of strength," which would permit a peaceful settlement with the Soviet Union. It was Acheson who warned that without such an effort, "we can lose this struggle without a shot being fired." It was Acheson who told the Senate, early in June, that "the only honest answer" he could give was that the cost of rearming our allies would have to be increased.

IT WAS JOHNSON, appearing before the same Senate committee, who remarked coyly that he had been "living a little more closely" with the military situation than Acheson, and promised the Senators that his best guess was that the cost could be reduced in future—about as bad a guess as any public figure in recent history has made. It was Johnson who falsely promised the country that we were "obtaining greater combat capabilities at less expense."

Now all Acheson's warnings have been tragically vindicated. Now all the falseness and emptiness of Johnson's boasts have been tragically revealed. Yet it is Acheson, not Johnson, who is to be the Republican target. Why?

For one thing, of course, like any Secretary of State, Acheson has made mistakes. It is true that by the time Acheson became Secretary of State, nothing short of the intervention of American troops could have saved the Nationalist regime in China. Yet it is certainly also true that by authorizing the release of the White Paper on China, Acheson accelerated the Nationalist collapse, which cost the West invaluable time in Asia.

This was his worst mistake, but Acheson has made others—although the famous National Security Council paper writing Korea off as indefensible originated in the Defense Department rather than the State Department. But the fact is that the Republican strategy has very little to do with Acheson's policies. It springs from other sources.

One of these, of course, is what has been interpreted as Acheson's defense of Alger Hiss—and however laudable Acheson's motives may have been, this certainly left him wide open to attack. Another source is Acheson's personality. It is not only that Acheson's obviously superior intelligence enrages the primitives of the stripe of Senator Wherry. It is also true that Acheson's rather frigid manner has irritated many people in the Congress and the country. What is more important, Acheson, unlike Johnson with his American Legion background, has no protective political base.

MOREOVER, Acheson does not enjoy one major Johnson asset—a total absence of principle. Acheson has given strict orders to all his subordinates not to criticize Johnson in any way. At the same time, it is no secret that Johnson has deliberately embarked on a campaign of distortion designed to undermine Acheson's position. While he has been commiserating with all and sundry about Acheson's "timidity," Johnson has also shrewdly reversed his position. He now talks to Congressmen about a 50-billion-dollar defense budget next year, and more than hints that a general war is probably inevitable. Thus Johnson hopes to cover up the tragic failure of his "economy" program.

Johnson also has close connections in the sort of business circles which deeply influence (to put it mildly) men like Brewster and Wherry. Moreover, men of Wherry's stripe are themselves wholly vulnerable. Wherry, for example, as recently documented in this space, has consistently joined Vito Marcantonio in voting the straight Communist line on foreign and strategic issues, which perhaps explains why he places blame for the bloodshed in Korea "on the shoulders of Dean Acheson" rather than on the shoulders of Josef Stalin. Thus for a combination of motives, most of which are exceedingly sordid, we must now expect the deliberate destruction of national unity on American foreign policy, in a time of appalling danger.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Stassen Doctrine

MR. STASSEN made a speech last week in which he offered his answer to the question posed with such terrible sharpness in Korea. How can this country carry out the promise, laid down in the Truman Doctrine, to resist aggression everywhere in the world, and yet not let "our armed strength . . . be dissipated and spread out in jungles and mountains and valleys in distant parts of the world?" It is obvious, as Mr. Stassen realizes, that to fight two or three wars in the Korean style in various parts of the world, as we might be obligated to do under the Truman Doctrine, would be to exhaust our power without achieving our aims. To win a military decision in the Korean war alone may well require a larger army than we had in all parts of the world on June 25, 1950.

Lippmann

So, says Mr. Stassen, let us ask Congress to pass a resolution declaring that we shall go to war with Russia "if further aggressions occur at any point in the world by these Communist imperialist forces," and then let us ask the General Assembly of the United Nations to approve our resolution.

Mr. Stassen's proposal is, I imagine, in substance the one which occurs first of all to anyone who begins to study the problem. It is so natural and so easy on first thoughts to say that instead of fighting the satellite aggressors, let us threaten to fight the Russians if they support and even if they do not restrain the smaller aggressors.

BUT ON second thoughts the trouble with this proposal is first, that though it is an ultimatum to be enforced by going to war, nobody could draft the ultimatum and make its meaning clear; and second, the military power to enforce with any reasonable prospect of success any ultimatum against Russia does not now exist.

There can be no greater mistake in foreign affairs than to threaten loudly but unclearly to go to war, and not to be nearly strong enough to win the war if the chip is knocked off your shoulder.

MR. STASSEN can satisfy himself on the first point by sitting down quietly to see whether he can draft the resolution he wants Congress and the United Nations to pass. As a matter of fact I think he should have done that before he made the speech. In so grave a matter it was his duty to say precisely, not excitedly and rhetorically, just what he thinks the terms of the ultimatum should be.

Let me cite an example from his speech to illustrate the imprecision, indeed the wooliness, of the proposal. "Should we not make it clear," he asked in the main statement of his proposal, "that an attack in Indo-China or Burma . . . will not simply mean that war comes to Indo-China or Burma . . . but will mean that war will come to Moscow, to the Urals, to the Ukraine?"

I SHOULD like to see how Mr. Stassen would make that clear. I should like to see the resolution that he thinks could pass the Congress of the United States and then the General Assembly of the United Nations, in which the United Nations—the western Europeans, the British, the Scandinavians, the Arabs, the Indians, the Pakistanis, and all the peoples of the American Republics—said that they would go to war with Russia if the Chinese intervened more heavily in the wars that are now going on in Indo-China and in Burma.

An ultimatum is the most serious act in diplomacy, and never should an ultimatum be delivered which, besides being reasonable and just and workable in its terms, is not also unmistakably clear in its language.

NOR SHOULD an ultimatum which could bring on a universal war even be considered unless there is preponderant power to enforce it. That no such power exists is evident. We and our Atlantic partners are working feverishly to increase the military forces of Europe, and we hope by 1952 to make western Europe less nakedly vulnerable than it is today. If everything we are planning to do, if in addition everything we are talking about doing were done, the Atlantic Community would be considerably more secure against attack.

But to think that nations which are undefended now are now in a position to issue an ultimatum to the strongest military power on earth seems to me a good deal less than statesmanlike. Mr. Stassen said in the same speech that the policy he recommends will require "a total of 35 billion dollars or more per year for a number of years." It seems to me amazing that he thinks he can deliver an ultimatum to Russia as cheaply as that, to deliver it on a military budget of 35 billion dollars a year or anything like it.

WHAT Mr. Stassen needs is to study thoroughly and to grasp the fundamental facts of the military situation in the world today. It is plain that he does not understand the situation now. Someone who knows what Mr. Churchill called the other day "the terrible facts" should do for the United States in its relation to the whole world what Mr. Churchill did in Parliament and then again at Strasbourg for Britain and western Europe.

But if men like Mr. Stassen who, if they will only stop and listen, can know better, are still so crudely unaware of the limitations of our power in relation to the armed and armored hordes of Eurasia, we will not correct the mistakes which are costing us so dearly, we shall only compound them.

Laborites Submit World Plan

States already is at work on future plans for economic recovery of the rest of the world.

"All the free peoples would be expected to contribute to the world plan according to their ability," the party said. "The plan would be carried out through public as well as private investment, through national as well as international action, through colonial development as well as through the United Nations.

"The guiding purpose of such a plan would be to help the poorer peoples to help themselves, and the extension of democratic self government would accompany economic progress."

Phillips said that Russia and other Communist nations would not be specifically excluded from such a plan but declared "we would not want a veto." This apparently would exclude the Russians, anyhow.

France's Schuman plan for uniting Europe's coal and steel industries was not discussed. A previous party publication on European unity rejected any kind of supranational organization which could dictate economic decisions to member nations.

The party backtracked on an assertion in a previous pamphlet that Britain could cooperate only with socialist governments.

"We do not expect all the countries with which we cooperate to be socialist," the new pamphlet said. All we ask is that they should have sufficient mastery over their own economic systems to fulfill their obligations in international planning."

The publication will be laid before the party's annual conference for discussion in October.

one or both of his wrists, "and lost a good deal of blood."

They charged that authorities in the case were remiss in not having Hendricks taken to a mental institution immediately.

Joseph E. Moxley, warden of the jail, confirmed Hendrick's detention but refused to discuss with a reporter the family's charge that Hendricks attempted to take his own life.

The practical nurse, Mrs. Ruth V. Cochran, according to the family representatives, had been promised that the 50-year-old man would receive psychiatric attention.

"He just cracked up," she said. "He didn't even know where he was when they took him away."

She said he had not injured anyone: "All he did was in his talk. And he did talk some of violence. He tried to take his own life."

Mrs. Cochran cares for Hendricks' elderly mother, Mrs. Daisy Hendricks, at the Hendricks home, 5515 Hampden la., Bethesda.

The tall, bespectacled Hendricks, was sentenced to the 10-year term December 19, 1946, on a manslaughter conviction. Associate Justice Tom Clark, then United States Attorney General, was among six character witnesses for Hendricks. They had been fraternity roommates at the University of Texas.

Hendricks had pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity. He maintained that the shooting occurred after his wife, Gertrude, 42, threatened him with a gun.

A family representative said last night that Hendricks "is an extremely sick man." He said all attempts would be made to see that he is given psychiatric care instead of being forced to return to the Maryland Penitentiary.

F. Murray Benson, chairman of Maryland's Division of Parole and Probation, said Hendrick's recommendations for parole were "good."

Benson said his department has no authority to have Hendricks committed to a mental institution. After Hendrick's return to the Maryland Penitentiary, he continued, the family would have to make an application to the State Department of Correction.

Jail Warden Moxley said Hendricks is due to be returned to the penitentiary today.

In the meantime, Moxley continued, Hendricks' clothes—shoes, belt, pants, shirt—have been taken from him as a precaution. He said Hendricks seemed "very nervous Saturday and a little better today."

"I talked with him," Moxley said, "and he said he didn't know what made him do what he did."

M. Ciboulot Speaks . . .

'Neutralism' Exposed By French Satirist

The brightly-written, well informed Paris daily, Le Figaro, has been a staunch fighter in the cause of French rearmament and of French participation in cooperative defense efforts under the North Atlantic Pact.

The opposition that it has to fight in France is that of the partisans of "neutrality." They are those who think that Western Europe can stay aloof from what they see as a quarrel involving only the United States and Russia, and that it can thus find salvation.

The satirical piece that follows attempts to strip the pretense from the arguments of the "neutralists" and show them up, in naked form, for what they really are. The article appeared on the front page of Le Figaro of August 9. The author is Pierre Gaxotte, a well-known French journalist.

THE CAFE drowsed in the expectation of tourists. On the terrace, the proprietor was on the lookout for the uncertain arrival of a car.

Inside, while the cashier set out small lumps of sugar on the metal saucers, two habitues of the cafe, M. Ciboulot and M. Marmouillard, were talking over general ideas. Everyone knows, of course, that the cafe is the place where every Frenchman elaborates his political theories and the latest in metaphysics.

"Marmouillard," M. Ciboulot asked, "what do you think of re-armament?"

"That's a question that deserves a careful examination," replied Marmouillard, who was cautious and lazy.

"You're right," Ciboulot continued. "It's a question that must be considered from a high level, within the frame of reference of world strategy, and not with the elementary reflexes of animal defense."

"I believe I understand," Marmouillard murmured.

"IT IS self evident," Ciboulot added, 'that the defense of France is not the concern of the French. That is not their role in the world. France is an old and tired nation, whose genius is the art of good living. The defense of France concerns the Americans.

"However, if they behave themselves, if they are polite and deferential, if they do not maintain the intolerable expectation that we should convert into canons a part of the billions that they are giving us under the name of the Marshall Plan, we shall consent to cooperate with them, in a limited measure, and with the imperative reservation that none of us shall serve in the infantry."

"And what if the Americans decline to look at it that way?" Marmouillard asked.

"So much the better," Ciboulot replied happily. "Who will be plunged into confusion? Papa Stalin. He would certainly attack and conquer us if he knew the Americans were with us, but he will be forced to respect us when he sees us alone and without arms, living happily behind our big placard, 'Neutrality.' In fact, I'm even in favor of planting one of those placards beside every frontier post. What an effect on Moscow! What do you think, Marmouillard?"

MARMOUILLARD remained silent a moment, and then he said:

"If you intend to deliver this discourse in public, I advise you to rewrite it."

"Why, if you please? Don't I speak French well enough?"

"Too well, on the contrary. You say things too clearly. People would understand immediately and would either want to laugh or shrug their shoulders.

"Your beginning was fine. '. . . Within the frame of reference of world strategy . . . Elementary reflexes of animal defense . . .' That's the right tone and the right wording.

"But then you said 'infantry.' The word is absurd. Say 'foot-soldiers,' a derogatory word that makes you think of a column straggling along the road, exposed to every blow.

"Don't say so bluntly that a declaration of neutrality would make Stalin afraid and stop the Red army at our gates, or you'll make everybody explode with laughter and your argument would be lost. The point is a delicate one—so be vague.

"SPEAK of a 'third force,' of a 'third party,' of a 'return to arbitration under the United Nations, of the 'privileged situation of the western bastion,' or of 'a new statute for Europe founded on continental solidarity.'

"Better still, end with some such phrase as 'France will seek elsewhere the conditions of its security.' In short, don't give away the plot right off the bat."

"Marmouillard," said Ciboulot, "you're a smart aleck. I'm going about my business."

"As you choose, Ciboulot. But don't say that I have done anything but correct your style."

"And why not?"

"Because I have the reputation of being a serious man, and propose to keep it."

"And I'm not a serious man?"

"You're a gagster, Ciboulot."

"Here comes a car," the proprietor shouted.

Yanks Win Twice, Move Into Second as Tribe Drops Two; Redskins Clean Up in California, Manhandling 49ers, 31-12

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

AT SOME HOUR TODAY, Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler will knock down the television rights to the 1950 World Series to some successful bidder for a price in the neighborhood of $700,000—one of the nicest neighborhoods you could pick.

And in December when Chandler goes before the 16 major club owners to tell them he wants another seven-year contract as their boss at $65,000 per annum, that certified check for 700 grand he will be flourishing won't alienate any of their affections for him.

Povich

Go-Getter Chandler, unlike his predecessor, the late K. M. Landis, has been blessed with something extra to sell, in television, and you'd have to say he has been a sharp operator in that commodity. Big Business, with the kind of advertising budgets that can go for $700,000 out of the petty cash drawer, wants in on the benefits of World Series sponsorship.

Chandler has been tilting the price every year, apparently without discouraging the bidders, and he is aware that the legendary fecundity of the jackrabbit is bush league compared to this Nation's breeding of television sets.

THERE WAS A Nation-wide gasp back in 1934, when Landis announced that he had sold the radio rights to the World Series that year for $100,000 to the Ford Co. No sports event had ever commanded that sort of important money, but Landis apparently was not the salesman Chandler has proved to be.

For the next 11 years, despite the fact that the number of radio sets had quadrupled during Landis' regime, the old gentleman never raised the $100,000 ante of the sponsors. Chandler, however, refused to hold still for any such static price. His bill went up in direct proportion to the number of video sets, after the television rights were first sold in 1946.

In that initial season of television, Chandler got $50,000 for the video rights. The next year it was $65,000. In 1948, it was $140,000. Last year, Chandler demanded, and got, $200,000 from the Gillette Co., which also chipped in $150,000 for the radio privileges. But A. B. was merely warming up, apparently, for his big pitch—this year's $700,000 deal.

The hike, though, is not as brutal as it may appear. Chandler is willing to make it a fixed fee for a term of six years, and the buyers know that by October the coaxial cables will link 16 more big cities to the video circuit and that by 1951 they'll have Coast-to-Coast television audiences.

JUST A COUPLE of years ago, the club owners were bleating that the Players' Pension Fund, one of the gadgets Chandler had helped think up after he took office, was costing them too much money. It saddled each club with a new bill for about $12,000 yearly and the benefits to the players were so high there was doubt if they could be paid off without further assessments on the owners.

In one swoop, though, Chandler has rid the magnates of all their worries on that score. He stilled the players' demands for a cut on the radio receipts by getting their agreement to dump the radio revenue into the Pension Fund under pain of calling the whole thing off. That put the Fund on a paying basis without further support by the owners. The agreement with the players runs for six years.

The players haven't asked yet, for any new deal, but this new big price the owners are getting for television might give them an idea, of course. However, the Pension Fund, which the owners used to moan about, is now the very club with which they can beat down any players' rebellion. The video revenue goes to the major leagues' so-called emergency fund, used sometimes to help club owners in distress, and in a pinch would pay Chandler's salary in a lean attendance year.

BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL already has one distinction—it's the second greatest cash business in the world, outranked only by the United States Post Office Department. The money is in the till before the performance starts, and there is no accounts-receivable department. None of its customers are bad credit risks. To the ordinary businessman, it's a merchant's paradise.

And the by-products of baseball are no less than wonderful, with the profits usually surpassing the net income from the main show. Before the season starts, for example, the New York Giants and Yankees, are $300,000 ahead on their sale of television and radio rights, and here's a nut-shell run-down on what a club like Washington gets before the gates are opened in mid-April.

A guarantee of more than $100,000 for the year's radio-television privileges; a reasonably expectant profit of $100,000 on the sale of hot dogs, cokes and other concessions; approximately $100,000 in rent from the Redskins and college football teams in any year. In any year he can break even on his baseball operations, Clark Griffith can show a whopping profit.

Baugh Tosses To 2 Scores; Goode Runs 38 for Third

Kezar Stadium, San Francisco, Aug. 20.—The Washington Redskins clinched the professional football championship of California today.

They socked the San Francisco 49ers, 31-12, to make their two-game exhibition invasion of the Coast a complete success. Last Wednesday night they racked up the Los Angeles Rams, 17-14.

It was the Redskins' first meeting with a team from the old All-America Conference. The pleasure was all the Redskins, who won pretty much as they pleased after a sputtering first half.

Sammy Baugh, as usual, was the big gunner. He flipped two touchdown passes to completely outclass Frankie Albert, the top quarterback in the old AAC.

Line Rushes Albert

Albert, rushed off his feet by what appears to be the first good line the Redskins have built in years, passed for both of the 49er touchdowns. His first gave the San Franciscoans a brief 6-3 lead in the third quarter. His second came late in the fourth quarter when the Redskins were ahead, 24 to 6.

Rob Goode chipped in a 38-yard run for another Redskin touchdown and little Eddie LeBaron, who was responsible for the presence of at least 10,000 of the 51,201 Kezar Stadium customers, tossed for the final Redskins' touchdown.

Bill Dudley kicked all four extra points and also booted a 13-yard field goal to give the Redskins a 3-0 halftime lead.

Paul Lipscomb, Laurie Niemi, Al Demao, Ed Berrang and Joe Tereshinski manhandled the forty-niners line. They did a particularly good job on Al Beals, the pass catching end of the forty-niners. He was knocked off his feet practically every time he set out for a pass.

First Half Chances Wasted

The Redskins defenses, both air and ground, were so effective the forty-niners, runnersup to Cleveland's Browns for the A A C title for four years, were able to get into Washington territory only twice, once in the third quarter and again late in the game. A fumble put them there the first time and Albert passed them there the second trip.

Fumbles, interceptions and one stout stand by the Frisco line cost the Redskins numerous first-half scoring opportunities. They ended up on the two, one, nine, 17-yard line and eight-yard lines in the first half.

Hall Haynes, a big hero in these parts when he played for nearby Santa Clara, set up Dudley's first quarter field goal, which proved

DiMaggio Hits 3-Run Homer Against A's; Chisox Beat Lemon

Rickert's Homer, Errors Beat Indians

Cleveland, August 20 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox cashed in on Marv Rickert's home run and three Cleveland errors today to sweep a doubleheader, 2-1 and 6-5.

Rickert's homer off Bob Lemon accounted for both the Sox first-game runs. The errors, two of them bad throws by Joe Gordon, accounted for three unearned Chicago runs in the second game.

The losses dropped the Tribe into third place.

With the bases loaded in the third, Gordon threw into the Cleveland dugout trying to complete a double play and Billy Pierce and Nelson Fox scored.

The second baseman fielded Billy Pierce's blow but threw into left field in the sixth trying to catch Gus Niarhos. Niarhos went to third on the play and scored on Nelson Fox's single.

Jim Lemon, playing his second major league game, dropped Philley's fly in the fifth, allowing the Sox runner to get to second from where he scored on Gus Zernial's single.

Zernial hit a game-clinching homer in the seventh.

Gordon, Al Rosen and Thurman Tucker all hit four-base blows for Cleveland in the second game.

Rickert won the first game in the fourth inning by belting his homer after Ed Robinson had walked.

The paid attendance was 48,885 boosting the Indians' home attendance past the 1,500,000 mark.

Lopat and Ford 6-4, 5-2 Victors

Philadelphia, Aug. 20 (AP).—The booming bat of resurging Joe DiMaggio and tight pitching by Southpaws Ed Lopat and Ed Ford gave the New York Yankees a double victory over the Philadelphia Athletics today, 6 to 4 and 5 to 2, and sent the Bronx Bombers bounding into second place in the American League.

DiMaggio's three-run homer in the first game helped Lopat to his fourteenth victory while Ford checked the A's with six hits in the nightcap for his fourth straight win.

DiMaggio had three hits in the opener as he continued to celebrate his recent return to the lineup with base knocks. The Jolter seems to have shaken the slump that forced Manager Casey Stengel to bench him for the first time in his career.

Ford has now allowed but two runs, only one of which was earned, in his last 261/3 innings of work. Philadelphia's first run resulted from an error by Phil Rizzuto, a single and a fielder's choice in the second inning. The other tally came on a double by Eddie Joost, an infield hit, a sacrifice and Sam Chapman's outfield fly in the fifth.

DiMaggio's home run, his twenty-third of the year, after walks to Rizzuto and Berra gave New York three quick runs in the first inning of the opener. Philadelphia scored twice in the first on a single by Paul Lehner, Billy Johnson's fielding error and Ferris Fain's double.

Musial Drives In All Runs as Cards Win, 3-2

St. Louis, Aug. 20 (AP).—With Stan Musial batting in all the runs, the St. Louis Cardinals nosed out the Cincinnati Reds, 3 to 2, today to take all the games of the three-game series by a one-run margin. Howard Pollet gave up seven hits as he outhurled Herman Wehmeier and Kenny Raffensberger.

The triumph pulled the Cards up the National League ladder a half-game and into a third-place tie with Boston as the leaders were idle because of rain.

Coe Fights Jinx On Champions

Minneapolis, Aug. 20 (AP).—Charles Coe of Oklahoma City is determined to be the one who breaks the trend that defending champions do not repeat in the National Amateur golf tourney.

Play in the golden anniversary tournament begins tomorrow on the par 35, 36—71 course of the Minneapolis Golf Club. Only Lawson Little, in the mid-thirties, has been able to repeat since the golden days of Bob Jones.

Overmire Halts Leaders' Streak at 5

Detroit, Aug. 20 (AP).—Stubby Overmire of the St. Louis Browns broke a five-game Detroit Tiger winning streak today as he humbled them, 6-2, in the nightcap of a double-header after the Tigers won the opener, 5-4.

The loss cost the league-leading Tigers a full game in the pennant scramble to the New York Yankees, who swept a double-header from Philadelphia to move into second place, three games behind.

Former Tiger Overmire was rocky in spots but had enough in the clinches to notch his fifth win in his first start against his old teammates. The Browns got him off to a good lead by mauling Hal Newhouser for four runs and driving him to the showers in the fourth.

Justice Still Up in Air

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Charlie Justice, the University of North Carolina triple-threat all-American, said today that it was very doubtful that he would play professional football.

"My work with the Carolina Medical Foundation is No. 1 on my list," said "Choo Choo" from his home in Asheville where he was spending a short vacation.

Justice said that if professional ball, even in Richmond, would interfers with his permanent job, he would not play.

Nats Rained Out in Boston

Gene Bearden Awaits Shot At Cleveland Here Tuesday

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Boston, Aug. 20.—Rained out in their series finale with the Boston Red Sox here today, the Nats left town this afternoon, happy at the prospect of returning to the more open spaces of Griffith Stadium.

The Nats enjoy another day of rest tomorrow, and on Tuesday night, they entertain the second-place Cleveland Indians, first of the Western clubs to visit Washington in the next 10 days.

Gene Bearden, purchased from the Indians a couple of weeks ago, will get a chance to pitch against his old mates in the first game.

The Nats received rough treatment from Boston here, dropping two games by one-run margins on a Bobby Doerr homer in the tenth inning, 7-6, and a Buddy Rosar single in the ninth, 5-4. Both would have been routine outs in other ball parks but they were base hits in cozy Fenway Park with its 315-foot left field fence.

Consuegra's New Contract Bars Him From Winter Ball

Sandalio Consuegra has signed a Nats contract for 1951 that bars him from playing winter baseball in Cuba, Nats Vice President Calvin Griffith said yesterday.

President Clark Griffith personally signed Consuegra to his new contract. The slender pitcher received a "little but not much more" than the $5000 minimum which he now draws.

Rates 'E' for Enthusiasm

Erdelatz Building a Fire Under Navy

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, AUG. 20 (AP).—Navy, the unofficial football of recent football seasons as it was kicked around more than somewhat by its rivals, isn't going to stand there broadside and take it this year.

The Middies are going ont to win games with enthusiasm, realizing a smooth attack and a stubborn defense might also be of some help.

But it's really enthusiasm which is painting the brighter picture down at Annapolis. The spirit fairly permeates the late-summer atmosphere on the banks of the Severn, and has infiltrated into the cozy little city.

"I can almost smell it," a shopkeeper who for years on end has watched the ebb and flow of the Navy tide each fall, observes wisely.

"It's a spontaneous enthusiasm," another merchant suggests." It's something that has been lacking in recent years."

Behind it all is a stocky, smiling fellow named Eddie Erdelatz, whose own bubbling enthusiasm has engulfed the vicinity. He's starting a four-year contract as head football coach and already has gained the respect and affection of the academy.

He's tackling a monumental task and knows it only too well. Navy football had reached such a low ebb that it will take whole-hearted cooperation of all concerned to bring it back. He admitted as much when, for the first time, he met the entire plebe class a couple of weeks ago.

"You and I are starting out together—all plebes," he told the youthful Middies. "All of us have four years to produce. Let's work together. Anything I can do to help you, let me know. And if I should call on you for help, I hope you will help me."

Such humility brought instant reaction from the class. The boys hardly could wait. When the call came for plebe football practice approximately 350 rarin' to go athletes reported.

The class was shown movies of the 1

Arlington's Joe Palmer Finally Wins

By Happy Walker

St. Michael's, Md., Aug. 20.—W. Earl Orem, Earl Hildebrand, Bob Lawrence, Joe Palmer and Mulford Scull were standouts as the twenty-ninth annual regatta of the Miles River Yacht Club came to a close here today.

Palmer, Arlington, Va., top-ranking East Coast speed driver, shook off his recent losing jinx to take the hotly contested 135-cubic-inch hydro class with some brilliant driving against a crack field.

Norman Bradford, St. Petersburg, Fla., took the first heat, while Palmer trailed in second place. In the second heat, Palmer burned up the course in Miss Fort Pitt, borrowed from Tony Margio of Harrisburg, Pa., to pass Bradford in the third lap.

Moments later, Bradford's Tiger Shark caught fire. Another Washingtonian and a comparative newcomer, Frank Vernon, managed a second and a third to break into the winning column in the Fancy Free.

Palmer's winning speed was 59.602 miles per hour.

Continuing his victory march, Earl Hildebrand, Arlington speed merchant, made it two wins in a row to take the first place trophy in the 48-cubic-inch hydro class. W. Earl Oren, Cambridge, Md., drove his weird-looking green and orange Sea Turtle to an impressive first place in both heats of the 225-cubic-inch hydro event.

Haefner Two Strokes Back; Cooper Third

By George Bowen

Baltimore, Aug. 20 (AP).—Lloyd Mangrum, cool and deadly when the pace was hottest, roared home in 69 strokes today to grab the $2600 Eastern Open golf prize with a 72-hole total of 279.

The three-under par windup enabled the veteran topnotcher from Niles, Ill., to beat Clayton Haefner from Charlotte, N. C., by two strokes.

Pete Cooper, who started the last 18 like Haefner with a stroke advantage over Mangrum, struggled into third place with 282. The Ponte Vedra, Fla., pro went a stroke over par in his finale.

The tall, dark and suave Mangrum was the only one of seven leaders going into the home stretch to break par. His 72-hole total was nine strokes better than par for the Mount Pleasant course.

He summed it up briefly. "The others just faltered and I came on." Nothing sensational, nothing bad, he described his play.

The beer-barreled Heafner, on the other hand, had a struggle with the links made soft and tougher by an overnight rain in contrast to the sun-baked ground of the first three rounds.

Playing two holes ahead of Mangrum, the last in the field of about 60, Heafner fought hard to match par 72, his third straight such score. He had a scorching 65, a new course record by two shots, on opening day Thursday and up to today had been at least tied for the lead.

AT BEL AIR

DEAR FOLKS:

"Did a horse ever win at a nearby track without a ticket being sold on him to win?" queries J. H. K. The answer is yes. Sweep Vestal won the second race at Charles Town on June 4, 1936. Not only was no ticket sold to win, but there wasn't a ticket sold on the daily double involving the horse. The track paid win bets on the thoroughbred who finished second and also figured the daily double on that basis. Some tracks buy a ticket on every horse that runs and take all combinations in the daily double. However, I don't believe this is done at any of the nearby plants. Over a season, it proves unprofitable as a rule, even if the double pay-offs are long.—BILL.

Royal Cashes In on Reprieve, Upsets Burwell, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4

By Gordon Beard

Unseeded Doyle Royal, given a reprieve Saturday when his opponent defaulted after being within one point of victory, yesterday upset fifth-ranking Clayton Burwell, 2—6, 6—2, 6—4, to advance to the quarterfinals in the District of Columbia tennis championships at the Woodmont Country Club.

Royal's triumph was the second upset of the day. Sixth-seeded Bill Gifford lost to Jim Doyle in the second round, 6-3, 9-7.

Although moving into the quarterfinals, seventh-seeded Phil Neff had close calls in two three-set matches by underdog opponents.

In the completion of a second round match halted by rain Saturday, Neff had to stave off match point twice before emerging the winner over Pietro DiAndrea, 10-8, 1-6, 7-5. Then Tim Coss, District junior netman, bowed to Neff after putting up a stiff battle, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1.

Second-seeded Don Leavens was the only other player to move into the round of eight as he won over Capt. Art Dreyer, 6-1, 6-4. Barney Welsh, winner of last year's tourney, plays today for the first time. His second-round opponent is Thornton Moore.

Redskins Upset 'Frisco By 31 to 12

to be the only score of the first half.

Haynes intercepted Albert's first pass of the game on the Frisco 49-yard line. In eight plays, the Redskins had a field goal. A Baugh to Frankie Spaniel pass was good for 40 yards. On fourth down, Dudley arched a perfect three-pointer to give the Redskins the lead they lost only once.

Crowd Wanted to See More

The crowd booed the kick. They wanted to see Baugh either try to throw a touchdown pass or send one of his fleet runners into action.

The Redskins spent most of the rest of the first half fumbling away scoring opportunities.

Their wastefulness caught up with them in the third quarter when Baugh fumbled and Guard Bruno Banducci pounced on it for the 49ers on Redskins' 21-yard line.

Halfback Joe Perry got 8 yards on the first crack, but he and Johnny Strzykalski were thrown back at the line of scrimmage on their next two efforts. On fourth down, Albert sneaked over for a first down on the 9-yard line.

Shoener Makes Score

The 49ers tried a running play and Perry got 3 yards. Albert stepped back and pitched a touchdown pass to End Hal Shoener, brother of Herb, former Redskins end. Herman Wedemeyer's extra point effort was low, and the 49ers were leading, 6-3.

The lead lasted only as long as it takes to pronounce Chuck Drazenovich for it was Drazenovich, heavyweight boxing champ at Penn State, who intercepted Albert's pass a moment later to start the Redskins goalward.

With the ball on the Redskins 41, Baugh, who completed 12 out of 16 passes, arched a high, perfect shot to Bones Taylor. He was running full steam when he caught the ball on the San Francisco 28-yard line. Bones just kept on running for a touchdown. Dudley kicked the extra point and gave Washington a 10-6 lead.

Four minutes later, Baugh passed the Redskins to another touchdown. This drive started on the Washington 26 and most of the ground was gained on four Baugh passes. His last was a 12-yarder which Clyde Goodnight grabbed in the end zone.

Goode Goes All the Way

Now the rout was on. Early in the fourth quarter, Dowda intercepted another Albert pass, this on the Frisco 38-yard line. It took only one play for the Redskins to score. Baugh sent Fullback Rob Goode outside Leo Nomellini's tackle and Goode didn't stop until he crossed the goal line, carrying Safetyman Lowell Wagner with him the last 5 yards. Dudley's kick made it 24-6.

With only four minutes to play, Albert launched a desperate passing attack and it clicked, moving the losers 70 yards on six plays. A 29-yard strike to Wedemeyer by Albert, moved Frankie into position to toss a 15-yard TD pass to Halfback Sam Cathcart. That was all the scoring for the 49ers but not for the Redskins.

They had saved the "peoples choice," little Eddie LeBaron for this spot, and LeBaron, playing his final game of pro ball before rejoining the Marines tomorrow, came through perfectly.

He fired a 33-yard TD pass to Oklahoma's George Thomas, making his debut as a Redskin. Thomas helped the 75-yard excursion by racing 37 yards to the San Francisco 37 two plays before LeBaron ended the drive with his TD pass.

Kiner Game Ahead Of Babe Ruth's Pace

Chicago, Aug. 20 (AP).—Ralph Kiner, Pitsburgh Pirate left fielder, moved one game ahead of the late Babe Ruth's 1927 record-breaking pace today as he hit his thirty-seventh homer of the year in the second game against the Chicago Cubs.

In 1927 when Ruth was compiling his amazing total of 60 home runs he got his thirty-seventh in his 114th game. Kiner's came in game No. 113.

Meanwhile, the Pittsburgh slugger is eight games and seven days ahead of the record pace he established last year when he finished with 54 home runs.

The Cubs swatted Vernon Law for three runs in the fifth inning of the first game before Pafko hit his homer in the sixth.

In the second game, Bill Serena hit his season's twelfth homer and Sauer tripled once and singled twice to score two Cub runs and drive in a third.

Fuchs Puts Shot 58 Ft. 9 9-64 In. To Top Own Mark

Visby, Sweden, Aug. 20 (AP).—Jim Fuchs of Yale cracked his own unofficial world record for the 16-pound shot today when he heaved the iron ball 58 feet, 9 9/64 inches.

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz

Thousands of New Jobs Involved in Requests For Deficiency Funds

Thousands of new Federal jobs would be created by deficiency fund requirements which the President has recommended to Congress.

Oddly enough, the Congress is considering these requests at a time when it's debating slashes in the 1951 budgets of most of the agencies involved, on grounds that they are of the nondefense variety. Here are a few examples of the President's recommendations:

State Department is seeking funds for 5502 new employes to carry out a "campaign of truth" through its international information and educational activities. A total of 82 million dollars additional has been requested.

State's Voice of America staff would be more than doubled if the funds are okayed. It now has 2207 regular American employes, to which 2355 would be added under the expansion program. Also, 2489 foreign employes would be added to the present staff of 1892.

In addition, 1255 administrative people would be hired to carry out the enlarged program. Several hundred of them would be in this city.

Veterans' Administration is planning to hire 2824 new employes under supplemental fund requests the President has recommended for it. Two thousand of these would be used to staff new hospitals. Eleven new hospitals were opened prior to June 30, and 23 additional new hospitals are scheduled for opening during this fiscal year.

These new hospitals will require a full-time staff of 11,255 employes but some hospitals are being closed and personnel from them will be shifted to the new institutions.

The VA expansion, incidentally, may be considerably more than 2000 new workers. The Army is appealing to VA to care for men wounded in Korea. It may pay VA direct for such services.

Furthermore, VA is seeking funds for 824 new employes in its loan guaranty program. Applications for GI housing loans has jumped 75 percent higher than was estimated. If funds are approved, these increases would be made:

Thirty-five new employes here, and 789 new field staff employes apportioned as follows: 311 in appraisal; 115 in examining; 22 in administration; 78 in control and records; 163 in direct loans; 34 in property management, and 66 in loan service and claims.

SELECTIVE SERVICE also is slated for a big boost to speed up the draft of men into the armed forces.

The agency has 179 employes at headquarters and Federal record depots, and 564 full-time and 2110 part-time employes in local boards.

Selective Service's proposed new $25,430,000 budget would allow 285 employes at national headquarters here; 1198 to State headquarters; 4366 at local boards, and 54 appeal board offices would be created and they, too, would have to be staffed. The agency has 37,000 unpaid volunteers—local board members.

IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE is seeking funds for 723 new employes. Here's why:

The Supreme Court ruled recently that deportation hearings must be conducted under the Administrative Procedures Act. INS had used its inspectors to hear such cases. Under the Procedures Act, a person up for deportation is granted broad legal rights and a hearing could run into days and weeks.

The backlog of deportation cases has jumped from 8778 as of January 1 to more than 15,000. In addition, more than 5000 cases must be reheard. If persons up for deportation demand hearings under the Supreme Court decision, INS would need about 5000 new employes to handle them.

However, there's a move on in Congress to offset the Supreme Court ruling by passing a law to exempt INS from the Procedures Act. The Administration favors the measure.

These new employes would be hired by INS under the present expansion plan: 80 hearing examiners; 217 examining officers; 16 docket officers; 5 interpreters, and 405 clerks and stenographers, a total of 723.

Veterans Get Preference At Greenbelt

1200-Member Unit Given First Chance To Buy U. S. Town If It's Put on Sale

The Greenbelt Veterans Housing Corp., whose 1200 members have started negotiations toward purchase of the model community, has received a notice of "first preference" from the Public Housing Administration.

The group's president, Michael Salzman, said he has been informed his organization was the only one accorded this status and thus PHA will deal with it before taking any steps to sell to others. The group had to meet a requirement of 800 resident members including 400 veterans to attain this status.

Exempt From Freeze

While PHA has not given any firm commitment as to whether the sale will go through, in the light of newly developed defense needs, the Housing and Home Finance Agency did put Greenbelt into a special classification with the other "Green" towns built during the depression, and exempted this group from a freeze order barring sale of other Federally-owned housing projects. Negotiations have, therefore, been continuing, while HHA pursues a study of defense needs.

$8,522,350 Valuation

The PHA appraisers set an $8,522,350 valuation on the Prince Georges County development and Salzman said he thought the final sale price will be close to that figure. An early part of negotiations will be an attempt by the association to question phases of the appraisal where it figures the amount should come down.

The project, as valued, did not include the community water and electric systems and only a part of the undeveloped land—700 acres of it, Salzman said. The HHA study of defense needs, however, may alter the contents of the Greenbelt "package" since more or all of the undeveloped land may be required.

If the Government's need for the property should increase during any phase of the negotiations, it may avail itself of a clause which reserves the right for PHA to withdraw any of the facility put up for disposition.

Deaf Mute Fatally Hurt in Rainstorm; Picknicker Dies When Truck Upsets

Two men were killed and 10 other persons injured, two of them critically, in area traffic accidents yesterday and during Saturday night's rainstorm.

Killed on Saturday was John H. Lewis, 52, of 127 U st. ne. Members of his family said Lewis, an employe of the Washington Terminal Co. was deaf and dumb.

Virginia State police said Lewis was fatally injured about 11:30 p. m. Saturday when he was struck by a car on Route 1, about 4 miles north of Fort Belvoir, Va.

Lewis was pronounced dead on arrival at the Alexandria Hospital.

James C. Williams, 18, of 2410 H st. nw., was killed last night when the truck in which he was a passenger left Central ave. east of Marlboro, Md.

A motorcycle policeman was injured on the 14th st. bridge in an unusual accident that involved his motorcycle, a police towcar, and a private auto.

The policeman is Pvt. Bernard E. Carroll, 30, of 6610 Exeter rd., Bethesda.

Blinker Lights Faulty

The blinker lights on his motorcycle were exhausted while directing traffic at flooded areas, police said. Responding to an accident call on the bridge, Carroll found the lights would operate only when the motor was running.

But the vibration set the cycle in gear and it plowed into the side of the bridge.

Police were towing the cycle away, when the private auto smashed into towcar, cycle and policeman.

Driver of the car was John M. Bowman, 39, of 2061 12th st. s., Arlington.

Dairy Group To Bar Users Of Chemicals

The Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association, still a bitter foe of chemical sterilization, has decided not to accept any farmers using the method to membership even though Washington has approved this practice.

The association announced it will have between 50 and 60 new producers in the area by November, all steam sterilizers.

The cooperative fought the method at hearings before city officials. Many of its 1706 members, who produce 150,000 to 153,000 gallons of milk a day, opposed the chemical method as "reducing standards."

Health Department officials said it was the equal of steam, but on orders from the Commissioners gave it a lesser point rating in determining the score of the milk.

Meanwhile, Kirk Miller, former public relations man for the association, said he is continuing his drive to form a milk distributors' association. Although no time or place has yet been set for a meeting, plans are being made for appointment of consumer, bottle-return, producer, health regulation and labor committees.

New School Dedicated In Arlington

Arlington's new 10-room Abingdon Elementary School was dedicated yesterday as School Board Member Dr. E. R. Draheim warned that the county still has too many temporary classrooms.

The ceremony was held in the auditorium of the $299,470 building at 30th and S. Abingdon sts. Draheim praised the "fine new school building," but noted the county still has 44 temporary classrooms in church basements and anywhere space is available.

It would take four and one-half buildings the size of the Abingdon Elementary School to accommodate students now in temporary classrooms, Draheim said. He urged parents and students who filled the auditorium not to forget that other school children were without such facilities.

School Superintendent William A. Early presented the keys of the school to its principal, Miss Mary Barbour, formerly head of John Marshall School.

At Emergency Hospital Ballance was reported in good shape and Johnson's condition was undetermined. Ballance told hospital officials the 12-foot aluminum outboard rowboat suddenly lurched and filled.

All-Night Record Rain Costs Thousands

Under clearing skies, Washington mopped up yesterday after its 3.86-inch rainfall.

The all-night deluge—a record for the year—caused thousands of dollars of damage. At least one death was attributed to it.

The victim was Robert Lee Kennedy, 43, president of the Franconia, Va., volunteer fire department. He died Saturday night, apparently of a heart attack, an hour after responding to a barn fire near Telegraph rds. The blaze, which destroyed the barn, was caused by lightning.

Throughout the area, the storm played havoc with traffic. Washington police reported a record number of accidents during the storm—30.

Capital Transit Co. said 34 safety markers on streetcar loading platforms were knocked down by autos. Usual number, even for a heavy storm, is six or seven, the company said.

There were numerous calls throughout the area for fires caused by lightning.

One of the most destructive was at the Claude Swanson Junior High School on North Washington blvd., Arlington. A bolt knocked a hole in the roof "large enough to drive a truck through," police said.

The Washington sewer department had two extra crews working through Saturday night on flooded basements. In the Peace Cross, Bladensburg, Md., area water was three feet deep, necessitating a detour from Hyattsville to Cottage City, Md.

The Townson, Md., fire alarm system was knocked out for two hours. Trees and wires were felled, and for a while last night even the Weather Bureau went without electric lights.

But the Weather Bureau said Washington's storm had no connection with the Atlantic hurricane. The Washington area, they explained, was in a "crucial spot" along a chain of thunderstorms.

The rain started at 7:12 p. m. Saturday and by 1 a. m. yesterday, the Bureau recorded a rainfall of 3.74 inches. From 1 a. m. to 9:29 a. m., .12 of an inch fell.

The clearing skies that followed are to continue—even improve—today. The forecast is for sunny, less humid weather with a high of about 76. The overnight low was set for 58.

Yesterday's high was 84 at 4:55.

The 95 planes flown from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia to Harrisburg, Pa., as a hurricane precaution Saturday night returned to the base yesterday morning. Bolling and Andrews Air Force Bases did not evacuate planes.

It looks like most any ivy vine, but its leaves branch off in threes on stout, rather long stalks. Young leaves are cringly and jagged-edged, become shiny green in summer. In fall, they turn temptingly to beautiful orange and scarlet.

British, U. S. Church Officials Meet Here

Old Church In Alexandria Gets Pastor

The Rev. Kenneth G. Phifer has accepted a call to become minister of Alexandria's historic Old Presbyterian Meeting House, it was announced yesterday.

Rev. Mr. Phifer

The 35-year-old pastor comes from Rock Hill, S. C., where he has served as minister of the Oakland Ave. Presbyterian Church for the past five years. Mr. Phifer will be the first pastor of the congregation which in July, 1949 reopened the colonial church on S. Fairfax st., after it had been closed as a place of worship for more than 60 years.

A native of Lewistown, Tenn., Mr. Phifer comes from a distinguished Presbyterian family. His father, the Rev. William E. Phifer, served for many years as pastor in both Northern and Southern General Assemblies. His brother, the Rev. William E. Phifer, jr., is now pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church in Kansas City, Mo.

The new minister has received an A. B. degree from Center College, Danville, an M. A. degree from Vanderbilt University and a B. D. degree from the Louisville Theological Seminary.

Since his graduation at Louisville in 1942, Mr. Phifer has held a pastorate in Franklin, Tenn., in addition to Rock Hill. He is 35 and will begin his new duties on September 16.

Mr. Phifer is the fourth pastor for the church since its founding in 1774. Perhaps its most famous one was the Rev. James Muir, chaplain of Alexandria's Masonic Lodge during George Washington's time, who assisted at Washington's funeral rites.

The Old Presbyterian Meeting House for many years has been a national shrine because of the Tomb of the Unknown Revolutionary Soldier, which the Children of the American Revolution erected and maintained in its churchyard.

The Meeting House stood empty from 1886 until last year, when the church was reorganized. The present congregation numbers around 200 persons.

Two Presbyterian world leaders met for the first time yesterday after delivering sermons at separate Washington churches.

They were the Rev. Dr. Roy D. Whitehorn, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of England, and the Rev. Dr. Benjamin R. Lacy, jr., moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

The occasion was a luncheon at Hotel 2400, attended also by Mrs. Whitehorn. The touring British clergyman and his wife left for New York immediately afterward. They will sail for England on Wednesday, closing a two-month visit to this country.

Much In Common

Dr. Lacy, a soft-spoken slight Carolinian, and Dr. Whitehorn found they have many things in common. Dr. Lacy mentioned leadership of minority groups of Presbyterians. [The large Presbyterian Church in Great Britain is the Church of Scotland, while the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America—the Northern group—outnumbers Dr. Lacy's Southern membership.]

Dr. Whitehorn pointed to the common ancestry and heritage of the two churches, kept fresh, he said, by interchange of clergy in training and in visits.

Dr. Lacy was most interested in finding out about religious conditions in England, while Dr. Whitehorn, wanted to know why church attendance seems "higher in the States."

Dr. Whitehorn also said he felt "the Korean outburst will result in closer understanding between the United States and Great Britain.

"What you are bearing now, we've had to bear for a number of years," he said.

Earlier Dr. Whitehorn spoke in the National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw., on "The Gospel Wherein We Stand."

Basing his remarks on the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians, Dr. Whitehorn said it is "only through Christ that we know the truth about God and man.

"The power of God," he said, "is supreme. We are in his hands. The gospel of salvation comes both through the truth and the power."

Stresses Three Relations

Dr. Lacy, who preached at the Central Presbyterian Church, 15th and Irving sts. nw., stressed the three relations in prayer, private, in small spontaneous groups and in churches.

He told how, as moderator of the General Assembley, he receives many letters from individuals asking prayers for peace.

"Some letter writer urges that the church direct prayers, be said." Others say all churches should get together for a day of common prayer. And still others want the President to declare a day for fasting and prayer."

ITU to Hear Addresses by Green, Morse

President William Green of the Federation of Labor and Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) will address today's session of the International Typographical Union convention, scheduled to open at 9:30 a.m.

The ITU, whose convention began Saturday and will continue through Friday, also will hear Reuel D. Harmon of St. Paul, Minn., president of the union employers section of the Printing Industry of America.

The speaker for Tuesday's session is expected to be Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin.

Many Issues to Be Faced

The 400 delegates of the job and newspaper printers' union will start work today at the Mayflower Hotel on more than 100 issues to be decided.

Proposals are being filed by the laws committee of the international, by locals and by individual delegates. About 30 measures have been introduced by Jesse B. Manbeck, delegate of Columbia Typographical Union No. 101 here, including a resolution to urge home rule for the District.

One proposal recommended by the committee on laws would have strike action decided by simple majorities of union locals rather than by the three-quarters vote now required.

Guests of Publishers

Last night the publishers of the four Washington newspapers gave the delegates and several hundred members of the women's auxiliary, also meeting here, a reception at the Mayflower Hotel, convention headquarters for the ITU.

The reception was preceded by a banquet given by the Mailers' Union, affiliated with the ITU, attended by publishers' representatives and leaders of the local printing industry, as well as ITU President Woodruff Randolph and other international officials.

A Mailers' Union dance last night drew an estimated 2000 delegates and local members.

Earlier, the printers and their families took a five-hour sightseeing tour.

New England Awaits Gales From Twister

Boston, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—A tropical hurricane with winds up to 120 miles per hour whirled up the Atlantic shipping lanes today and the Weather Bureau warned it will pound inland New England with gale force winds Monday.

The bureau's latest advisory places the Caribbean-spawned storm about 200 miles off the coast and 220 miles south of Nantucket, a resort island off the Massachusetts coast. A damaged freighter was wallowing in the hurricane's wake off the Virginia coast.

The center of the storm will brush past Nantucket, 120 miles to the east, about midnight or early Monday, the bureau said, with resulting wind, rain, and high tides. Then it probably will move north-northeast in the next 12 hours and blow itself out over eastern Canada, the advisory said. The storm is whirling northeastward at about 25 miles per hour.

The bureau warned New England fishermen and seaside residents to be on guard against high tides and gales because gales are lashing out from the storm center 300 miles to the east and 200 miles to the west and this means strong winds will pound 80 miles inland when the hurricane passes Nantucket.

However, the latest advisory said, "the present path of the hurricane is such that the most destructive quadrant of the hurricane will continue to remain at sea as far as southern New England and the Islands of southern New England are concerned.

A victory ship was caught in the hurricane's wake off the Virginia shores and three ships sped to its aid. The S. S. South Bend Victory, its engines disabled and its life boats smashed, wallowed in gale-whipped seas 300 miles southeast of Cape Henry, Va. A coast guard cutter and two destroyer-mine layers rushed to the scene.

The Coast Guard pushed rescue efforts for 11 fishermen marooned on rocks 75 yards off Warrens Point at Little Compton, R. I. The men were caught by surf and high tides.

The Navy ordered hurricane condition two for its ships and bases in the Rhode Island area and shore liberty for all personnel was canceled.

About 100 civilian workers at various naval bases and the Quonset Point Naval Air Station were ordered to their jobs to secure equipment for the expected blow. They were told to bring food to last several hours.

The big storm kicked up high tides and squally weather along the oft-battered Carolina coast.

Storm warnings were ordered displayed from Cape Ann, Mass., southward to Sandy Hook, N. J., and areas north of Cape Ann were alerted to expect a possible extension of the storm warning.

The Weather Bureau said the hurricane no longer posed any threat to coastal areas south of New York.

1 Killed, 1 Injured When Car Hits Horse

Lake View, Iowa, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A Kansas City man was killed early today when the car he was driving struck a horse on the highway.

Dead was Herman Deacon Cohen, 44. Another man riding in the car, Jack Kirschenbaum, also of Kansas City, was treated at a hospital for cuts and bruises.

Sac County Sheriff W. J. Stuart said the horse "came up over the hood and smashed the windshield right into Cohen's face."

James Disclaims

White House 'Race' Denied By Roosevelt

New York, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Reports that two of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt's sons are staging a race for the White House were denied today by James Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Governor of California.

Appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press" program, the elder of the two politically active Roosevelts was asked if it were true that he and his brother, Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr. (D.-Lib. N. Y.) had rewritten the words of an old Scotch ballad to read:

"You take the high road and I'll take the low road and I'll be in the White House before you."

"I don't think that either of us is entertaining any such ideas," Roosevelt said. "We both want to do a good job. He is now a Congressman. I don't know what the future holds for him. All I know is that I hope it will be my privilege to be the Governor of California."

Victor Riesel of the New York Daily Mirror asked Roosevelt "if your brother runs for Governor and he is elected and you run for Governor and are elected, doesn't that indicates there is a Roosevelt dynasty?"

"A dynasty is something you inherit by right," Roosevelt replied. "In a democracy, in which you and I live, it's the people who decide, and I think there can be no question of any inherited right in this instance."

Muscovites Cheer Film Story Of Allied 'Plot' Against USSR

Moscow, Aug. 20 (U.P.). — Ten thousands Muscovites jam-packed into Gorki Park's open-air theater last night to see and applaud the premiere of the "semi-documentary" film "Secret Mission"—the story of an American and British wartime conspiracy to betray their Russian ally to the Germans.

Reviews of the movie, which will open in most Moscow theaters tomorrow and eventually will be shown in every theater in the Soviet Union, said it was "based on documentary evidence."

Aram Khatchaturian, one of Russia's top three composers, wrote the music for "Secret Mission." Leading artists and directors collaborated in filming the story which shows American and British secret agents plotting with Nazi Leaders Heinrich Himmler and Martin Bormann to defeat the Red army.

The action takes place in the winter of 1944 when Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt mounted the Ardennes offensive which almost proved disastrous for American and British troops.

British Prime Minister Churchill, the story goes, appealed to Premier Josef Stalin for immediate aid and Stalin informed him the Red army could launch a general offensive in mid-January. Thereupon Churchill communicated the Soviet plan to the German high command, according to the story.

This enabled the Germans to pull their main forces out of the west and turn them against the Russians, but the Russians, anticipating treachery, started the offensive ahead of schedule, attacking from the Baltic to the Carpathians and crushing the German war machine, the story said.

Gestapo Chief Himmler, in his part of the "secret deal," informed the American high command that all effective German forces had been transferred to the east.

"Your troops can advance unhindered," the movie quoted Himmler as saying. "Our garrisons will surrender, if even three American bicyclists, drunk or disarmed, enter."

Farouk Attends Deauville Fete Starring 2 of His Favorites

Deauville, France, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—King Farouk of Egypt broke off a $60,000 winning streak at the Deauville casino tonight and lent his royal presence to the French-Egyptian fete which starred two of his favorite exotic beauties.

Sitting impassively at the table of honor, a great emerald on the middle finger of his right hand, Farouk watched sloe-eyed Samia Camal do the sensuous dance, "Virgin of the Nile," and Annie Berryer sing, "Song of the Nile."

Samia, leading Egyptian dancer who has performed countless times for Farouk in his palace, and who has one of the 25 rooms reserved for Farouk's party at the Hotel Du Golf, drew wolf calls in half a dozen languages from spectators dizzy trying to keep eyes fixed on her rotating mid-section.

Annie, a French girl who has had two successful seasons at the King's pet Cairo night club, sang a song especially written for the occasion by the well-known French composer, Guy Lafarge.

Farouk permitted photographers to take his picture freely for the first time since his arrival here. Until tonight, Egyptian and French detectives have confiscated every plate they could get, including one showing him walking across his hotel lobby with a woman at 4 a. m.

It was feared the wrong construction might be placed on what the corpulent, 30-year-old monarch's spokesman said was just a friendly conversation.

The fete itself was stupendous. At other tables were the Begum Khan and her husband, the Indian potentate, Aga Khan; Prince Aly Khan and beautiful Rita Hayworth; the Maharaja of Rajputla, and Prince Ibn Saud of Arabia. Both Rita and the Begum wore 30-carat diamonds, the size of sugar cubes.

Two Americans present were Joyce Matthews, New York television star, who denied reports she will remarry Milton Berle; and 16-year-old Mimi Medart of St. Louis, whose mother was an early film star.

Crowds outside saw bejewelled, fur-clad women roll up in limousines as if they had stepped directly from the salons of Dior or Cartier. Sable was as common as mink.

The parade of fashions, which was supposed to be part of the fete, fell flat because the women guests outshone the models.

One British matron, sitting directly in line with the oncoming models, wore a two-inch wide collar of rubies and a four-inch wide diamond bracelet.

The casino already is about one million dollars ahead of its last year's profit. In its brief season, only three months of big play, it has taken in more money than any other French casino, except the tables of Enghien, which feed on Paris.

Exotic Food No Mystery To Washington Housewives, Proffered Recipes Prove

CONNOISSEURS of exotic food prove plentiful in the Washington area, it seems. Not one, but a half dozen recipes for fish cooked in lime-juice have poured in since E. C. of Waterford, Va., put in a plea for information about this unusual dish which originates in the South Sea islands. The trick to this recipe, readers may remember from E. C.'s inquiry, is that no heat is to be used in cooking the fish. Here are two versions of the novelty.

DEAR ANNE:

Here is the recipe for the pickled fish recently requested. It is in the Gentleman's Companion, by Charles H. Baker, jr., who got the recipe from Charles Nordhoff. I quote:

"To make this, you take a fish of not less than 5 pounds in weight and in the pink of condition. Remove and bone the two fillets and cut them into pieces about 1 inch square and ½ inch thick. You then put these pieces in a fairly deep dish and squeeze out enough fresh lime or lemon juice to cover, leaving the fish to 'cook' in this citric acid for not less than 1½ hours. At the end of this time, you throw all the liquid away and serve the fish in one of two manners:

"With raw, very thinly sliced union and a French dressing made of vinegar, olive oil, salt, and hand-ground black pepper.

"In a sauce made by grating a coconut (kernel) into its milk, then squeezing through a cloth to extract the cream, adding salt, white pepper, thinly sliced raw onions, and a bit of garlic if you like it.

"The native name of this dish is 'I'a Ota.' The fish is anything but raw, for it is COMPLETELY COOKED in the acid of the lime juice. I think that you and your friends would pronounce this dish a delicious variety of hors d'oeuvre, and it is widely known and appreciated in the South Seas as a specific for the man who has looked too long upon the flowing bowl the night before."

Mrs. W. M. B., Arlington, Va.

Thanks to Mrs. W. M. B., as well as to J. Z. B., Mrs. W. P. R., Mrs. P. L. T., and others who have sent in directions for making this dish. One lady suggests using frozen fish fillets and calls the dish a "Limed Fish Appetizer." Another version printed below is simpler than the Baker version, and calls for regular cocktail sauce.

DEAR ANNE:

E. C., of Waterford, Va., asks about fish cooked in lime juice. Here are the directions, which I cut from a magazine quite some time ago. I've never tried it, so can't vouch for it.

"Take any fine, white, raw fish. Flake it. Cover with lime juice and let it stand for four or five hours. Drain it. Chill it. Serve with cocktail sauce. The lime juice cooks the fish."

Dorothy H. Jones, Chevy Chase, Md.

DEAR ANNE:

Do eggs beat better when they are ice cold, or at room temperature? C. V., Arlington.

Eggs give better volume when beaten when they're at room temperature. However, the yolk and the white separate more easily when chilled. It's a good idea to separate them as soon as you take them from the refrigerator, then let them stand to warm a bit at room temperature before beating.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

PETUNIA!

It would be a lot easier on your table linen, Petunia, if you had put a big rectangle of waxed paper under the child's plate. It's almost invisible, and it catches a lot of spills.

Your Figure, Madame

Beware Salt-Free Dishes in Summer

By Ida Jean Kain

SO FASCINATING is the idea of being able to convert solid fat into streamlines without counting the calorie cost, that overweights swallow any pseudo-scientific diet that promises to work sleight-of-calorie tricks.

A recent article on reducing in a national magazine advocates eating all the fat desired — lots of meat and potatoes and preferably fat meats, with all the fat left on. Instructions are that all salt must be avoided.

What about this? . . . you readers have been asking. The science of nutrition proves fat to contain two and a fourth times more fuel than the other nutrients. Still you can eat meat and potatoes three times a day . . . and lose weight. Why? Because you will only want so much meat and potatoes. After that you will not be tempted to go on eating as you would if blueberry muffins, strawberry shortcake, or some other delectable carbohydrate were placed in front of you.

The originators of this eat-all-the-fat-you-wish diet claim that calories do not count in reducing. Hold on! The only time calories need not be reckoned with is when they are not there. When the calories consumed daily are below the number used daily, stored fat will be drawn on and weight will be lost. That scientific fact was proved 50 years ago.

This liberal fat diet does not include bread and butter, vegetables, salads or desserts . . . nothing but meat and potatoes. Take everything but those two foods out of the menu, and the total calories will be low enough in most cases to force stored fat to be used. The high protein furnished in the liberal amounts of meat three times a day, serves to stimulate burning of body fat. If Mrs. Sprat had had Jack's share of the lean with her fat portion, she would have been in less danger of losing her figure.

Look at it this way . . . you get out of any diet just what you put in it, and that one provides protein, fat and starch. The fat of the meat supplies high fuel and high satiety. The diet does not furnish calcium to protect teeth and bones, and it is lacking in certain of the essential vitamins. Also, with high fat and low carbohydrate there is the danger of acidosis, a condition unfavorable to health. The inclusion of potatoes in the diet offers protection on this score, provided they are eaten at every meal, since potatoes produce and alkaline reaction.

Salt is restricted in order to prevent water storage. In certain cases of high blood pressure, salt-free diets are prescribed. But a warning . . . beware of any diet that restricts salt in hot weather, unless advised by your doctor for you. Because of the high fat content and low salt, this diet is particularly unsuited to summer slimming and is inadequate for prolonged reducing at any season.

A safe reducing diet meets basic nutrition needs, but restricts total calories. The quickest and healthiest way to do is to trim fats. In summer it's more cooling, too.

560 Acres—100 Acres Sold For Development

This acreage is located 4 blocks over the District line in the zone of the New South Capitol St. bridge. This Bridge is operating now with a capacity of 50,000 automobiles a day. They also propose to bring a bridge from Alexandria over to this neighborhood. The East Capitol Street Bridge will be built shortly and that also will assimilate traffic in this section. The Pennsylvania Ave. S.E. bridge and the 11th St. bridge is also furnishing traffic in this neighborhood. The Baltimore Blvd. is coming down in this vicinity. It will make this the greatest commercial and traffic center and also make this a great shopping district. Land where shopping centers are needed is usually worth a million dollars an acre. A small cemetery on a portion of this property can be enlarged. They don't allow any new cemeteries in Maryland except to enlarge those which are already there. Cemeteries when fully developed usually are worth around a $100,000 an acre. This property can be had as an entirety at $4000 per acre. Property is clear of encumbrance and will sell on reasonable terms. I am settling my own estate in my 84th year, otherwise I wouldn't sell.

Now another piece of acreage I want to tell you about. It is the finest setting for a home in a fashionable neighborhood in this part of the United States. I offer this property to the public at cost, plus taxes and interest for the 22 years I have owned it and they wouldn't buy it. I am building my own home there and it is nearly finished. This property fronts River Road right opposite the entrance to the Congressional Club. Just stop your car as you pass along River Road and you will see the most beautiful home and also the most beautiful setting for a home in this part of the United States. Look at it and if you want it, to build a beautiful home there, ride up and talk to Mr. Elgin, one of the best builders in Montgomery County. You can build your home on the adjoining property. I go out to see my new home every day and my wife and I both get a thrill out of it every time we look at it. Ride out and see if you don't get a thrill out of it. Fulton R. Gordon, owner. You can reach me at my home WO. 0933. Brokers attention.

34 'Towers of Babel' Bolster TV Networks

New York, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—Thirty-four Towers of Babel, each zinging hundreds of telephone messages and several television programs over the earth, will link New York with Chicago September 1, the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. announced today.

By September 30, the communication network will extend to Omaha and, eventually, to the West Coast.

The towers are relay points in the new superhighway of communications that will augment existing coaxial cable routes to the Midwest Radio beams carrying video signals and telephone messages will hop across them from New York to Chicago quicker than a wink.

The system will work this way:

The towers are built at intervals of about 25 miles across the 838-mile route from New York to Chicago on a line-of-sight level. This means that the towers themselves are anywhere from 60 to 200 feet high, so the radio waves can move in a level line from one o another.

At New York, the radio signals, carrying video and telephone conversations in a beam similar to a searchlight beam, are flashed from the top of a New York office building to the first relay station in New Jersey.

The New Jersey relay station picks up the radio impulse and shoots it at the next station and so on across the Nation. Each station boosts the signal back to its original strength.

Each of the telephone conversations rides the radio waves at a different frequency and at special terminals, the conversations are screened and sent to the proper destination.

If you could cut one of the waves open at a relay point you might hear a traveler just arrived at the New York International Airport talking to his wife in Chicago, a steel producer in Pittsburgh talking to a salesman in Cleveland, a Toledo housewife talking to her mother in Johnstown, Pa. . . . all against the background of Jacob Malik talking into a television microphone at a session of the United Nations.

The New York-to-Chicago network cost about 12 million dollars to build and provides additional service to such intermediate points as Pittsburgh, Johnstown, Pa., Cleveland and Toledo, Ohio.

The radio beam is sent across the country with a transmitter power of only ½ watt. A highly efficient metal lens is used to obtain the signal and if it were not used it would take a transmitter of 25 million watts to produce the signal.

Bill to Ban Slot Machines Up for Action

The bill to ban interstate shipment of slot machines is due for House action today.

The measure, passed months ago by a unanimous Senate vote, was somewhat altered by the House Interstate Commerce Committee to limit its effect to the one-armed bandits and to pay-off pinball machines.

Under the bill's provisions, Nevada, where slot machines are legal, and such States as Maryland, where they are permitted by county option, would have to pass new laws to tie in with the Federal statute if any new machines are to enter these States.

Only last Friday the Senate Crime Investigating Committee called for passage of the measure, designed to cripple, if not destroy, the multi-million-dollar annual take from the one-armed bandits. Since the machines are all manufactured in Chicago, new plants would have to be established in every State where they are used to get around the Federal act.

Chairman Johnson (D., Colo.) of the Senate Commerce Committee, told The Washington Post he was disposed to accept the House version of the bill, assuming it passes as it came out of committee. This would avoid a conference between House and Senate and could bring the bill to President Truman's desk by mid-week. Mr. Truman is expected to sign the measure which would go into effect at the moment of signing.

The bill is one of a big batch of measures the House will consider this week.

Today's program is due to begin with a call of the consent calendar by which minor bills not facing opposition may be passed. Next comes a bill to provide two additional Assistant Secretaries of Agriculture and third is the slot machine measure.

House leaders said they wouldn't promise to follow this schedule but would try to do so.

House members were promised that because of primary elections on Tuesday in New York, Mississippi and Wyoming, there would be no roll-call votes on any measure until Wednesday at the earliest.

Churchmen Held Friendly To Nehru Plan

New York, Aug. 20 (AP). — A National Episcopal weekly said today that 469 Protestant churchmen's "favor every effort in the direction of peaceful settlement in Korea."

Even such proposals as India's — which would seat Communist China in the Unied Nations—are worthy of consideration, the weekly, The Witness, quoted the churchmen as saying.

The Witness said 27 Protestant denominations are represented by the 469 churchmen.

Their statement as quoted by the witness said in part:

"We favor every effort in the direction of peaceful settlement in Korea, such as the proposals of Premier Nehru, and other steps necessary to restore the United Nations as an effective agency of mediation.

"The moral atmosphere in our land today is dangerously pessimistic and warlike. A positive effort by the American people on behalf of reconciliation among the nations is needed to create a climate which will constrain our Government to give fuller support to attempts at peaceful settlement in Korea."

Among churchmen who signed the statement, the witness said, were five Episcopal and two Methodist bishops.

The weekly listed the Episcopal bishops as Benjamin Dagwell of Oregon and W. A. Lawrence of Western Massachusetts, and retired Bishops Walter Mitchell of Arizona, Edward L. Parsons of California and Robert E. Gooden of Los Angeles.

Methodist bishops listed were Marshall R. Reed of Detroit and John Wesley Lord of Boston.

Mexican TV Impatient?

It's All Here In Black and White

By Sonia Stein

Romulo O'Farrill, jr., manager of Mexico's first (and only) television station was saying the other day that XHTV was able to profit by the past experiences of TV in the United States. But it has not profited by one of our experiences, and to me it is absolutely incredible. I refer to the color television problem.

The Federal Communications Commission will make a decision about color television in the United States sometime soon—about Labor Day is the guess—which may stand the industry on its head. One of the primary difficulties all along in deciding about color has been that we already have over five million black and white sets in operation here which will require fairly expensive tampering with to become color sets. If they are not tampered with at all, they will merely get black and white pictures when color shows are being telecast, under one of the systems, being considered, and get nothing but a scrambled mess under the other system. Had there been no sets in use here, the decision would be simpler. Choose the better color system of the two and there you are.

In Mexico City where XHTV started broadcasting programs on July 26, there were only 20 sets installed as of July 15 when the station went on the air with a test pattern. Twenty sets is no sets looking at it broadly. On July 15, Mexico had no compatibility problem to face if color television suddenly became a practical reality. Today there are about 400 sets installed in the homes of Mexico City's more important citizens. By September 3 when the President delivers his annual message there will be another 400 sets, paid for by the city government, installed in the schools for the use of the townspeople. There are already 2000 sets on dealers shelves and O'Farrill estimates there will be five or six thousand sets installed by the end of a year.

By Labor Day, Mexico will have a compatibility problem all its own in regard to color television. This might make Mexico a good place to dump black and white sets if a clear cut color decision means they are no longer in demand here in the United States after Labor Day. Mexico is importing all of her sets as well as their transmitting equipment from us at present—some sets with cabinets, some without. Some 40,000 are expected to be imported in 12 months.

With the probability that Mexican TV will reflect decisions made about set manufacture in the United States, Mexico might have waited the few anxious months to see what the color decision from the FCC here would mean to the industry. Mexico could have been the first country in the world to have universal color TV.

By getting on the air in July, XHTV did become the first TV station in the Spanish-speaking countries. So far its on the air with programs about two hours a day using such films as O'Farrill has been able to get hold of. The Mexican film industry is every bit as skittish as our own, if not more so. O'Farrill has exhausted his supply of feature films which he got through a fluke and can get no more of any vintage. (Hollywood permits use of films over seven years of age here.)

His station has put on three bull fights, the first anywhere in the world, and has broadcast jai alai matches. (He's still dickering with baseball, basketball, wrestling and fighting interests.)

Advertisers have been invited to try their hand at TV programs, for free until the station gets going.

Young (32) and charming, O'Farrill is the son of the man who now owns Novedades, a Mexico City newspaper, as well as XHTV, and who is also a big car and truck distributor in Mexico. The O'Farrills come from a line which came to Mexico via Spain from Ireland in 1776 because Cromwell was stepping on its toes.

Wounded Recovering on Reaching Reed

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Doctors and medical staffers at the Army's Walter Reed Hospital are virtually unanimous in their belief that there's "something different" about the wounded soldiers being rushed here from the Korean battlefields.

During World War II, the medicos say, the casualties arriving here from any one of the global fronts—say North Africa, for instance—usually showed up bleary-eyed and utterly exhausted from the long trip by ship and train.

The Korean wounded, the Walter Reed staffers assert, very noticeably lack the beaten-down look characteristic of newly-arrived casualties in World War II.

The boys arriving here from Korea appear comparatively fresh, and are already well on the road to recovery, the medical people say, even though battle conditions in Korea are just about the worst ever encountered by an American fighting force.

Shared by Marietta

The reaction of the Walter Reed medicos was shared a few days ago by Maj. Gen. S. U. Marietta, who headed the Army Medical Center (which includes Walter Reed Hospital) during World War II and who is now retired. Marietta was visiting his old command when a new group of Korea wounded arrived. "Why, these boys look darn good," he was heard to remark.

The present commanding officer of the Army Medical Center, Maj. Gen. Paul H. Streit, heartily agrees, and points out three reasons for the improved condition of the current crop of wounded: improved technique for fighting shock, widespread use of antibiotic against disease, and air evacuation of the wounded.

"From the medical point of view," Gen. Streit observed, "our GIs are fighting in just about the worst area ever. Korea is, in this season, unbearably hot. Conditions are filthy. The ground is contaminated because human excreta is used for manure. Dysentary and malaria are rampant. Infection is a constant menace, especially to the wounded."

Despite these appalling conditions, disease and infection have been held under control, and many wounded in Korea, who might have died on World War II battlefields, are now being saved, according to Walter Reed's chief.

Shock Newly Restrained

Shock, a potentially potent killer, is now being newly restrained through speedy and massive blood transfusions. The infusions are made if necessary under enemy fire, with as much as 20 pints of blood, or blood-and-plasma, poured into the wounded GI's veins, Gen. Streit explained.

"It's simply that we know more today about shock, and how to overcome it," General Streit said.

He noted that only a few days ago, one of the Walter Reed patients back from Korea—around 120 have already arrived here—was given 15 pints of blood in 12 hours. The tremendous transfusion, given when the wound began bleeding profusely, undoubtedly saved the patient's life, the military surgeon declared.

Development of the antibiotics and other drugs is a second factor in saving the lives of the Korea wounded and in permitting speedier recoveries of the casualties.

The antibiotics like penicillin, chloromycetin, terramycin and the like—available in small quantities or not at all in World War II—have held disease in check. For example, chloromycetin, which researchers at the Army Medical Center helped develop, has proved to be an effective weapon against typhus and typhoid fever, according to General Streit. The sulfanilamides—regarded as a "wonder drug" at th beginning of World War II, is now used sparingly and under close medical control, he said.

Malaria Held in Check

Malaria, a terrific foe all over the world in the last war, has so far been held in check in Korea, General Streit said, through the use of a new drug, chloroquin.

Besides the better methods for dealing with shock and disease, the present-day wounded getting the benefits of fast evacuation from the battlelines to the military hospitals. Those wounded expected to recover within four months so as to be fit for duty, are sent to Japan. Wounded requiring a longer period of hospitalization, together with those requiring special treatment, are rushed back to the States.

Air evacuation — on hospital ships staffed by nurses and trained technicians—is presently working out so efficiently, according to General Streit, that some of the Walter Reed patients arrived here less than a week after being wounded on the Korean front—some 7000 miles away.

In the last war, it took weeks and months for American casualties to reach hospitals in this country. The long voyages by ship, and the long rides by train, added to the exhaustion of the wounded troops, lengthened the period of recovery.

"Why these wounded look and feel so good that by the time they get here, many are well on the way to getting better," exclaimed General Streit. "The day after one group arrived here, I spotted a young man who had been shot twice in the chest 14 days before in Korea, already getting around in the post-exchange."

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Gold is on vacation. His column today takes the form of a letter to his managing editor.

Dear Boss:

You are finally rid of me, but for a while there, I didn't think you were going to make it.

I had just swung down into Pennsylvania ave. when Bernice said: "You left a note for the milkman as I asked you to, didn't you?"

I didn't say a word in reply. I figured that my U-turn back to the apartment would be sufficient.

I'll take care of it," sighed Mrs. Martyr as we stopped. "If I had depended on you to take care of it, we'd have found 30 bottles of milk in front of our door three weeks from now."

She went off upstairs to write the note, and in a few minutes she was back. Walter stuck his head out of the car window, glanced up toward our apartment, and then got out of the car.

"I guess it's my turn now," he said. "I left the light on in my bedroom."

We finally got squared away, and were all the way across the 14th st. bridge when my 14-year-old relative casually asked:

"What's in this big envelope, Dad? Weren't you supposed to stop off someplace with it?"

I executed another U-turn in deep silence, and headed back toward the Senate Office Building.

You may recall that I asked your advice a few weeks ago about doing an item to try to help Dorothy Kilmer get some financial compensation from Congress. The day after it appeared, Senator Estes Kefauver expressed an interest in the case, and asked me to give him a review of the facts.

In the press of writing six advance columns, I forgot about the Senator's request until the night before we left. Then I sat down and rewrote (for the last time, I hope) the tragic story of a rookie cop who was "playing" with his gun, and an innocent bystander who was crippled for life when the revolver was accidentally discharged.

That was the material in the big envelope—so once again we doubled back, and left the information with Senator Kefauver.

As we started across the bridge again, I said: "Well, this time we're finally on our way."

"You mean you're not going to stop in Arlington and see if you can get those tires Lou Aiken told you about? You're not driving me through any mountains on these patched-up baldies mister."

"Let's not waste any more time," I pleaded. "The tires Aiken saw on the rack were probably sold, and being held for somebody."

I got one of those looks she usually reserves for Walter when he doesn't want to drink his milk. So I turned off toward Wilson blvd., and stopped at the Service Tire shop.

"Four tires?" said Bill Shively. "Yes, I just happen to have four Royal Masters left, but they're probably not your size. What are you driving?"

I pointed to our '48 Pontiac outside, and Bill grinned. "You've just bought our last four tires."

It was 2 o'clock when we finally headed out Route 50. About 10 miles from town we slowed down for the traffic circle outside Fairfax and my two passengers spotted the Howard Johnson sign. "I'm hungry," they announced in unison.

So it was 3 p. m. before we really got started. Anybody else would have been discouraged, but not me. With my family, that's par for the course.

We passed a Holmes Bakery truck, on the back of which was the legend:

"Hit me easy. I'm full of pies."

"So are we," mused Walter. "We should have a sign like that on our car."

We followed Route 50 almost to Winchester, then cut over to Route 11, which skirts the George Washington National Forest, through the Shenandoah Valley.

"I smell something burning," sniffed Walter as we went through Middleburg. "Did one of you throw out a cigarette that came back through the rear window?"

We couldn't smell anything, and a brief search failed to reveal any fire, so we went on.

The rambler, we discovered, is as popular out in the country as it is around big cities. All along the route we saw attractive one-story houses ranging from the compact $10,000 class to the retired-banker-type that go for $40,000 and up. Many were beautifully trimmed in stone, and some were completely made of stone. The kind that must give the owner a deep sense of security and permanency.

Strangely enough, even far out in the rural areas many of these houses have television aerials, indicating that TV engineers are overly conservative when they say that good reception cannot be expected more than 25 miles from the transmitter.

Our country cousins have also adopted another urban refinement (to which they're welcome, for my part). Most of the villages and towns along the way, we noted, have installed parking meters.

However, they seem to succeed where our city meters fail. The small towns have gotten the all-day parker's car off the streets, and there are usually plenty of empty spaces.

In Washington, the meters merely extract a 5-cent-per-hour fee for the privilege of storing a car in the same public space for eight hours.

Another roadside sight that would cheer your heart is the seemingly endless line of Washington Post tubes that stand alongside the rural mailboxes. I didn't know we had so many subscribers in the outlying areas. These folks apparently come to Washington frequently for their shopping and entertainment, and want to keep abreast of what's doing in our town.

When we were approaching Harrisonburg later that afternoon, we passed a small brush fire that covered the road in a haze of smoke.

"I told you I smelled something burning," coughed Walter.

"With that brand of corny humor," sighed his mother, "the poor child seems destined to become a columnist." Bill.

P. S.—We're driving straight on through to Lewisburg, W. Va., tonight, so that we can eat one of those delicious dinners they put out at the General Lewis Hotel. More tomorrow.

Mrs. Roosevelt Opposes Johnson

By Tom McNamara and Jack Anderson

(While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, his column is being written by members of his staff.)

President Truman has received some advice from the former First Lady, Eleanor Roosevelt, suggesting that he fire Defense Secretary Louis Johnson.

Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Roosevelt expressed her views last week in a confidential letter to the President, following his categorical statement that he would keep Johnson and Secretary of State Acheson in his Cabinet as long as he remains in the White House.

Writing as a private citizen, the former First Lady suggested that Truman might have qualified this by saying he would keep Johnson and Acheson "as long as they do a good job." She pointed out that every President occasionally finds it necessary to make changes in his Cabinet and it isn't a good idea to "freeze" a man in an important position.

Injecting a more personal note, Mrs. Roosevelt wrote that it was apparent to her from the tremendous volume of anti-Johnson mail she was receiving that the public had lost confidence in the Secretary of Defense. In view of this sentiment and in the interest of national defense, she suggested firmly that Johnson should be replaced.

Point of View

Jack Redding got a thorough going-over behind closed doors before the Senate confirmed his appointment as Assistant Postmaster General.

At one point, Senator Bill Langer, North Dakota Republican, noted that Redding claimed to be a "writer of fiction."

"Yes, he was director of publicity for the Democratic National Committee," dryly remarked Senator Zales Ecton, Montana Republican.

Budget Slash

President Truman won't take the proposed 10 percent, across-the-board slash in Government spending with his bat on his shoulder.

At a recent meeting with Federal agency chiefs, Truman strongly indicated that he might send a special message to Congress if the two houses don't reconsider the 10 percent reduction.

"This so-called 'economy' cut is one way to destroy Government agencies without outright abolition," declared the President. "You can cripple an agency so badly by chopping off its personnel that it cannot do the job. This is a grave situation."

"It's all the graver in wartime," broke in Federal Communications Chairman Wayne Coy. He explained that his agency was engaged in top-secret projects, vital to the war effort.

"We cannot do the job right if we are deprived of key personnel," he added.

"The same applies to my agency," broke in Thomas Buchanan, acting chairman of the Federal Power Commission. "The FPC must see to it that our war plants have enough gas and electric power to keep them going. We must establish a balance between consumer and war use of fuels and power."

Buchanan pointed out that Government departments, like Agriculture and Interior, might be able to withstand the 10 percent cut by spending less on "construction contracts," such as road building and reclamation projects, but regulatory agencies, like FPC, would be dangerously crippled, he said.

"I would like to get a memo from all agencies that will be crippled by the 10 percent reduction," Truman finally decided. "We've got to do something about it—right away."

'Thorn Among Roses'

House Appropriations Chairman Clarence Cannon of Missouri always sees to it that Republicans keep their "place" in committee sessions.

When House and Senate conferees on the District of Columbia appropriation met behind closed doors, Cannon's sharp eye detected GOP Congressman Earl Wilson of Indiana sitting in "Democratic territory" near the head of the table.

The Missourian crisply ordered Wilson to move to a humbler spot at the Republican end of the table.

"Okay, I'll move," snorted the Hoosier congressman, angrily pushing back his chair. "It must perplex the chairman to see a thorn among his Democratic roses."

Iron Curtain Chaff

Concrete evidence that the Chinese Communists are openly supporting North Korea is contained in a message from Chinese Communist Leader Mao Tse-tung to Korean Prime Minister Kim Il Sung. "The Chinese people warmly support the Korean people in the just war against United States imperialistic aggression," wrote Mao. . . . Political observers attach significance to reports from the Chinese capital indicating that Mao Tse-tung left Peking on August 11 for an "unannounced destination." . . . This could mean Moscow or somewhere in Korea. . . . The prestige of the United Nations is still troubling Communist leaders, judging by their propaganda efforts to conceal the fact that Americans are fighting in Korea under the U. N. flag. . . . No reference is ever made to United Nations authorization of American action in Korea. . . . Despite careful censorship, reports are trickling though the iron curtain that Communist officials must resort to desperate measures to make labor toe the mark. For example, in Rumania, a recent law has made "illegal appropriation and negligence at work" punishable by the death penalty.
